Some Student Traits

NEARLY every one who tries to portray contemporary college life falls into the error of thinking it may be done by a few bold strokes of the brush. Thus I find Mr. Walter Lippman asserting that "the American college student has the gravity and mental habits of a Supreme Court Judge." Conceived as a subtly worded case of contempt of court, this sentence rises to the sublime heights of blasphemy. As an attempt at careful exposition it sinks to the ridiculous. Still I have known some few students who were grave,—congenitally so, it seemed to me. Others developed this trait occasionally,—during examinations, for example, or when brought up before the Dean on a matter of discipline.

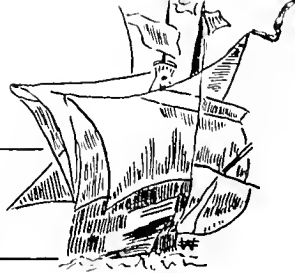

Former President William H. Taft has attempted a composite photograph of the American student whom he chides severely for his lack of physical discipline and of erect bearing, his indifferent manners and slouchy dress. Indeed, a few years as Kent professor of law at Yale seem to have made our erstwhile conservative chief of state a decidedly radical reformer of college abuses. Could anything more abundantly establish the need of prolonged, detailed and merciless muckraking in this field?

And yet college men as a rule are not slouches, nor is slouchiness by any means the chief of college vices. So far as manners are concerned students have always impressed me as being quite as much above the average of young men of the period as we have a right to expect. A few of them, it is true, are somewhat flashy in their apparel although not so much so as the ubiquitous advertisements of the makers of "college clothes" would have us believe. But this is a minor matter, as is also the occasional slipshod character of the student dress in the semi-privacy of the campus.

The one serious charge in Professor Taft's indictment, that of a lack of physical discipline, can scarcely be sustained. Contrast the trim, erect, athletic undergraduate with the greasy-eyed, stoop-shouldered, bow-windowed business men, successful and "tired," who ever since graduation have been leading sedentary lives, eating, drinking and smoking too much, and indulging little or not at all in vigorous sports. Indeed, I have always found alumni reunions rather painful affairs because of the rapid physical deterioration apparent in the classes which have been out five, ten, fifteen or more years. They remind one of ladders descending sharply, rung by rung, from perfect youthful health down through neglect to open graves.

And Mr. Lincoln Steffens also generalizes too readily about undergraduate life. He writes,—yea, he even italicizes the statement that "College students have too much reverence." He knows this of his own knowledge. It was true of himself, he avers. Nor, assuming the truth of this autobiographical statement, does he seem to suspect that he must have been a most unusual student, a veritable white blackbird of the campus. Reverence! Ye Gods! Reverence for whom, for what? For "Prexy"? For their particular "Profs"? For the "old Grads"? For "Lit." for "Math"? For anything else in the whole divine order of the universe? Living as they do in a keenly critical atmosphere it would be surprising indeed to find much of this quality,—whether you consider it a virtue or a vice,—among undergraduates. And yet some reverent souls there may be still among our students, a few even in the faculties. Let it be confessed, however, that most of the influential college professors of the period can with difficulty be brought to recognize any authority except that of the more recent text-books they themselves have written. Doctor Taft came, and saw, and now "views with alarm" this tendency on the part of certain professors, presumably at Yale. Surely, then, it must be more than common elsewhere.

THE HALCYON of 1918

For my own part even after teaching twenty years minus Sabbaticals, it seems an extremely difficult matter to characterize the undergraduate world. Experience has convinced me that students are the most variegated and inconsistent, as well as the most lovable, species under the sun. They reflect all the virtues, somewhat magnified, and all the vices, somewhat diminished, of the American life of which they are a part.

Without fear of successful contradiction, however, I shall maintain the thesis that the American college students generally are not given to over-studiousness. In so doing, permit me to apologize to the earnest and considerable minority who work conscientiously and purposefully, often acquiring more in two years than most of their fellows do in four. And as a professor, responsible to that extent for college evils, I accept frankly the heavier end of the burden of this criticism.

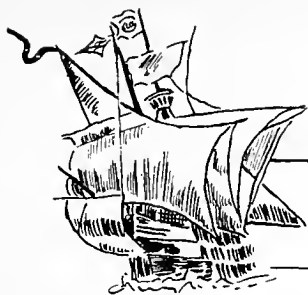

"Laborers," says Mr. Steffens, "especially the lowest, most troublesome class of least 'educated' labor, the I. W. W., are way ahead of college men." Ah, but the college man has already solved the labor problem for himself. Why should he protest, strike, resort to sabotage or other direct action? Counting class-room and laboratory time and all work of preparation the student who puts in an eight hour day is the exception, so exceptional in fact that unless he conceals his industry he will certainly be dubbed a "greasy grind" or "dippy stude." In most colleges of arts a six or seven hour working day is nearer the average. All yellow newspapers to the contrary notwithstanding, "breakdowns from overstudy" are the rarest of undergraduate occurrences. Nearly always alleged cases of this sort will be found to be due to other causes—occasionally to dissipation, but more frequently to inherited taints, or to overwork outside of college coupled with physical weakness.

Provision for public recreation is now admitted to be part of the problem of constructive statesmanship. The college student solved it for himself long ago. With his short working day he has ample leisure for this purpose. And he devotes himself to it with passion. Here no discipline is too hard, no coach too severe. As agencies to detect latent physical qualities, to develop them to the utmost and to exploit them to the greater glory of Alma Mater, American colleges lead the world. Substitute "intellectual" for "physical" in the preceding sentence and ponder the result.

In other uses of his abundant leisure the student is not so successful. "Let George do it" might well supplant the classic inscription over most dormitory entrances. Some of the undergraduate residents more than live up to the equivocal title of this kind of housing arrangement, significantly sacred as it is to our colleges and universities. And in addition to dormitories the facilities afforded by the back seats of large lecture rooms are thoroughly appreciated. Comparatively few students ever read for the pure love of reading, or, after graduation carry a liking for literature out into the world with them. Father as he writes the checks, and mother as she writes the good advice, are blissfully ignorant as to the amount of time sonny manages to consume in mere vacuous fellowship. Soothed by the everlasting tinkle of the mandolin, students are wont to smoke or dawdle interminably either alone or in each others rooms. And they have a Gargantuan appetite for social frivolities of the most conventional and stupid sort.

College men pride themselves upon their loyalty, and justly so. It is one of the finest and most fervid of their virtues, the glamor of which lasts to the end of life. Not for worlds would I have it otherwise. Yet there is a certain narrowness in the student's devotion to class, fraternity, and to team, even to the college itself. Retaining all their love for these idolized institutions would it not be possible to develop a more intense interest for the great causes which, in our time more than any other, are battling for supremacy in national and international life? In science, art, literature, and social politics there are always issues, discoveries, movements, which should evoke vigorous partisanship among undergraduates. Why should they not set themselves resolutely to the threshing out of the real questions of the day in both the academic and outer world? But, as Mr. Walter Lippmann maintains, it is indeed true of the American college student of today that "his 'wild oats' are rarely spiritual."

Superlatively amazing, also, is the lack of leaders and leadership in undergraduate affairs. With ample leisure for this purpose and with plenty of fine human material available, a student body nevertheless resembles nothing in the world so much as a flock of sheep. Some, perchance, hold aloof from the struggle on the specious pretext that they are preparing themselves for the sterner trials after graduation. With most, however, it is sheer diffidence or plain preference for irresponsible drifting. Yet every baccalaureate orator in the country will soon be busy hailing 1917's crop of graduates as the chosen leaders of the future, specially prepared for this function by their college training!

Leaders there are, of course, for the various student activities,—athletic, dramatic, journalistic, religious, social, and what not. Always, however, the tendency is strongly marked for offices in these various lines to gravitate into a few hands. Out of the six hundred students sixteen become known as "live wires" of the familiar type which prides itself upon "never allowing their studies to interfere with their college work." So common is this concentration of power in a few strong or popular hands that faculties have begun to legislate against it. Each undergraduate office is given the value of a certain number of points according to the time it requires or the honor it carries with it. No student is allowed to accumulate offices in excess of a certain number of points. It is a clumsy mechanical device, a mere crutch at best, but helpful perhaps under existing conditions. What is really needed among students is a widespread, vigorous industrious spirit of emulation that will smash prevailing cliques and coteries into flinders and open wide all avenues to leadership and influence.

Athletics and social activities are useful in their place, but that place is of secondary importance. Primarily the business of the student is to study. And of the faculty to see that he does it or makes room for men who will. In spite of all the scholarships and aids there are thousands of the latter stamp outside our colleges today. An efficient educational system based on truly democratic lines would prevent this senseless neglect of splendid human material and the equally senseless "casting of pearls" before those not eager to treasure them.

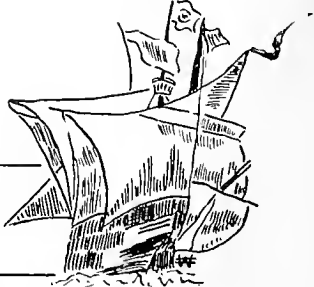

Of course this will seem a dreadfully pedantic and radical conclusion to many of my college friends. The "cakes and ale" contingent will howl over it in chorus. Dull epicureans that they are, how should they understand that only sturdy effort creates healthy appetite? Too well have they grasped the profound principle that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. But they are prone to forget that all play and no work makes Jack a sad shirk. And those colleagues of mine who believe in "inspiration rather than perspiration" will also protest. Certainly I am not an enemy of the former, but I have never yet seen inspirations ripen unless they were plentifully watered with perspiration.

All things considered, pessimism certainly is not indicated by any thoroughgoing study and experience of American college life. If there is a body of youth anywhere on this planet more lovable, more vigorous, more clean of body and of spirit than our undergraduate men and women I have never run across it. The miracles of growth that are accomplished between the freshman and senior years constantly renew one's faith in human nature. Not that the college can claim credit for all the growth that the booming years between eighteen and twenty-two brings to its children. But Alma Mater at least fosters this growth with keen interest and solicitous cultivation. In the return of her children's love her own richest harvest is garnered.

Old Ponce de Leon sought in vain the fountain of eternal youth. Many a college professor has found it in close contact and co-operation with an American student body.

Progress of the Year

By President Joseph Swain

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SWAIN

COMPLYING with the request from the Alumni Association, the Board of Managers changed Alumni Day from Third-day to Seventh-day. The change went into effect last Commencement. In order to make Alumni, Baccalaureate, and Commencement Days on consecutive days and at the weekend, the Commencement period has been somewhat shortened, the Commencement being held on Second-day instead of Fourth-day. Perhaps a longer period of trial is necessary before final judgment can be passed on this arrangement, but thus far the change seems to have given satisfaction.

Founders' Day

Tenth month 28th, was this year celebrated as Founders' Day. The attendance was large. The exercises were held in the Outdoor Auditorium. President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University, gave the chief address. We have seldom, if ever, had at Swarthmore a more fitting or more appreciated address than that of President Faunce. The day was a fine one. The speaker placed himself in touch with the audience at once when he said, "If this is a specimen of an October day at Swarthmore, then I wish that all the year were October and all the world a Swarthmore."

Wharton Hall

The third and last section of Wharton Hall, the men's dormitory, was almost completed during the past summer. In all essential particulars the building has been completed as approved by the donor, Joseph Wharton. The problem of a suitable college home for the young men is now solved for this generation.

In connection with the completion of Wharton Hall it seems appropriate to call attention to the fact that the dormitory for men is only one of the many gifts of Joseph Wharton for the up-building of Swarthmore. He gave the money for one-half of the Science Building; all the money for the Meeting House; he helped to endow the Library, and endowed the Professorship of Political Science. He gave in all about $250,000 to the college. During a long and useful lifetime he set a noble example of great achievement, high intellectual attainment, and sterling personal character.

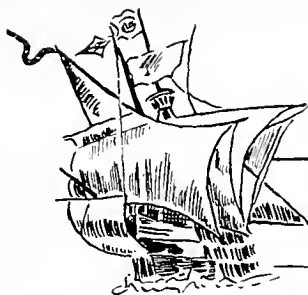

The New Athletic Fields

It has been evident for many years that some change in our athletic field was necessary. Whittier Field was too small, was too near buildings already erected and was the natural site for at least three new buildings. With the completion of Swarthmore and Alumni Fields this question has been satisfactorily settled for all time. In order to make way for these fields it was necessary to move the water tank, the barn, and the servants' quarters, and to construct new tennis courts. The grading itself involved the movement of a great amount of earth, shale, and solid rock, the greatest cut being about fourteen feet and the deepest fill about thirty-five feet. The money for grading the baseball field was given in part by Alumni and others, and the remainder for this field and all the money for the football field and track was given by Morris L. Clothier, '90. The Committee that solicited the funds consisted of Howard Cooper Johnson, '96, Chairman; Morris L. Clothier, '90; Henry C. Turner, '93, and Robert H. Walker, '02.

A portion of the fill required for the new fields was obtained by lowering the grade of Whittier Field and making it conform to the natural slope from the Chemistry Building to Beardsley Hall. This not only furnished material for the fill but in addition greatly improved the appearance of this portion of the campus, and also improved the sites for any new buildings that may be located there. The college is much indebted to all those who have contributed to make this movement possible, but feels especially indebted to Morris L. Clothier, who gave so generously, both of his money and time, that the College might have these large, beautiful, and conveniently located fields.

Beardsley Hall

The Engineering Shop Building, in Tenth Month last, was named by the Board of Managers, Beardsley Hall, in recognition of the devoted and efficient services of Arthur

THE HALCYON of 1918

Beardsley, for eighteen years in the Department of Engineering. It is a matter of gratification that this tribute to the late Professor Beardsley was given while he was yet living.

Jonathan K. Taylor Scholarship

By the will of the late Jonathan K. Taylor, Swarthmore College is to receive the sum of $10,000 to establish a scholarship. The condition of the gift is in part as follows:

"I give and bequeath to Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) for the purpose of a perpetual scholarship, to be known as the 'Jonathan K. Taylor Scholarship.' I direct that the recipients of this scholarship shall be selected by the Board of Trustees of the Baltimore Monthly Meeting of Friends, Park Avenue.

American Astronomical Society

The American Astronomical Society held its nineteenth annual meeting at Swarthmore College in the Sproul Observatory August 28th. to September 2nd, 1916. There were present eighty-five astronomers, coming from all parts of the United States and Canada; also a representative from Japan, two from Holland, and one from Belgium. The membership of the society includes the greatest astronomers of America, most of whom were present, among them being the President of the Society, Professor Edward C. Pickering, Director of the Harvard College Observatory; Dr. L. A. Bauer, Director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; Director Schlesinger of Allegheny Observatory, Director Fox of Dearborn Observatory, Director Mitchell of McCormick Observatory, Director Doolittle of Flower Observatory, Professor Brown of Yale, Professor Russell of Princeton, and Professor Eichelberger, Director of the Nautical Almanac. The name of Anna J. Cannon of the Harvard College Observatory should be mentioned as she is the most distinguished woman astronomer in the world.

Department of German

As is generally known, Dr. Benjamin F. Battin has spent the time since the beginning of the European war in doing what he could to help establish better international relations. He has become so much absorbed in this work, having a deep concern that it is his duty to continue it, that the Board of Managers have with great regret accepted his resignation from his present position. It is desired that he in some way, however, continue his connection with his Alma Mater. The College is fortunate in having Dr. Clara Price Newport to succeed him as Professor of German. She is a graduate of the College, has for five years had charge of a department in the absence of the head, is thoroughly familiar with the ideals and workings of the College, and is in every way equipped for this service.

Proposed Girls' Dormitory

Shortly before last Commencement, J. S. and W. P. Worth expressed a desire to establish some permanent memorial to their parents, who were both managers of Swarthmore College, and stated that they would contribute $50,000 for this purpose when the details had been agreed upon and satisfactorily covered. A Girls' Dormitory being most needed at present, it was suggested to have plans prepared and start the building of one section.

There was, however, more or less necessary delay in the selection of a site and the preparation of plans to be submitted to contractors, and when ready to ask for bids, it was found that labor and building material had so advanced that it would be unwise to start the work until conditions changed to a more normal basis.

Therefore, the amount pledged has been turned over to the College, to be invested and added to by the interest which will accrue, until a building has been definitely determined upon and started, and in the meantime, $50,000 is in the possession of the College, and until otherwise used, will be designated as the "Worth Fund."

The Jubilee Fund

At the meeting of the Board of Managers in Tenth Month, 1915, the President of the Board was instructed to appoint a Committee to consider the question of increasing the endowment of the College and to report to the Board at its meeting the following Twelfth Month. The Committee is as follows:

Emma C. Bancroft	Howard Cooper Johnson	Joseph Swain
Elsie Palmer Brown	Joanna W. Lippincott	Robert H. Walker
Isaac H. Clothier	Wilson M. Powell	Caroline H. Worth
Emma McIlvain Cooper	Marianna S. Rawson	Robert M. Janney, Ex-Officio
Charles F. Jenkins	Philip M. Sharples

"The Men's Dormitories Have Been Completed"

"Our Alumni Have Built Two New Athletic Fields"—President Swain

THE HALCYON of 1918

At the meeting of the Board of Managers in Twelfth Month, 1915, the Committee was instructed to formulate the plans for a campaign to increase the resources of the College, with full power to act. In the weeks previous to Commencement, the sum of $406,810 was subscribed. This sum includes $50,000 to be used to start the erection of a Girls' Dormitory referred to above. The Committee decided to secure as large a sum as possible by Commencement of 1917. It is the plan that subscription to the Jubilee Fund shall be paid in three installments; at least one-third by October 1, 1917; a second one-third by October 1, 1918; and the remainder by October 1, 1919, thus completing the payment to the College before the Jubilee Anniversary in October, 1919.

During the past four months something over $50,000 has been subscribed for endowment. The most notable subscription of late is a conditional gift of $125,000 from the General Education Board. This Board was founded by John D. Rockefeller and has for its purpose "the promotion of education within the United States of America." It is gratifying that the General Education Board has, by this gift, put its seal of approval on the educational policy of Swarthmore College. It is the only college in the East that received a gift of any kind at the recent meeting of the Board. In a statement made to them by the College the fact that Swarthmore was a Friends' College was not only made clear, but emphasized, as the following extract will show:

"Swarthmore is co-educational. The Friends who have founded the College have always believed in giving women equal opportunity with men. The history of the Friends makes an exceptional background for a co-educational college especially in the East. One who studies the life at Swarthmore is struck at once with the marked influence the traditions of Friends have on the College. One-half of the members of the Board are women, one-half of them have been women from its foundation."

Friends generally should find much encouragement that so important an educational foundation as the General Education Board shows by this conditional gift its approval of the College which has been built up with so much concern and sacrifice by the Friends.

$220,000 must yet be subscribed to secure the conditional gift of $125,000 from the General Education Board.

Alumni, ex-students, and students are now organizing to secure this sum. Up to the present time the endowment and plant has been given chiefly by non-graduates of the College, though there have been a few who have given most liberally from the Alumni and ex-students. There is now a very strong feeling that those who have been the chief benefactors of the College, namely the Alumni, ex-students, and students, should either give or secure this $220,000. As no student pays more than about one-half of the cost of his college education, this sum will represent only a small part of the obligation which those who have received the benefit of the college, or their Alma Mater,

Edward Clarkson Wilson, '91, President of the Alumni Association, will appoint a Committee of one man and one woman from each class to have general charge of the campaign among the Alumni and ex-students. He has already appointed Edward Temple, '91, Chairman of the Committee, and John Murray, '92, Vice Chairman. It is believed that every living Alumnus, ex-student and student should take two definite responsibilities in helping to secure this Jubilee Fund: First, to give what they can, and Second, to encourage others to do the same. So far as the matter has been discussed with those who especially receive the benefits of the College, we have been very much encouraged by their spirit of co-operation and helpfulness.

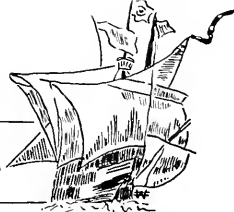

In conclusion, a recent editorial in the Phoenix is quoted: "Thus it is that Swarthmore is entering upon one of the most important campaigns in her history. The success or failure of this effort will determine the position she will in the future occupy among the educational institutions of this country. The success of the undertaking will be determined by the degree of our willingness to make sacrifices for Alma Mater. The success of the undertaking will be measured by the number of us,—students, alumni, faculty, managers, friends,—who stand by our college and accept the challenge laid down by the Chicago boy (who gave his first $1,000 to his Alma Mater). We cannot all give a thousand dollars, we can all give something; some of us can give more than a thousand dollars.

"What will the answer be? When 1919 comes will our celebration be a real jubilee? Will we all be enrolled? Will we all have done our best to repay part of the debt that is ours? Will we accept the challenge?

"Will you give a thousand dollars?

"Alma Mater receives only to give again, even as she has given unto you."

Swarthmore's Alumni

IT would be impossible, in such a book as this, to show adequately the fields Swarthmore alumni have reached, the works they have done, and the men and women who have done them. It is a case of picking out representative doers from a list of almost two thousand names.

The engineers of Swarthmore, perhaps, present the largest list of achievers. During his professorship of twenty-six years, the late Arthur Bearsley trained a large number of men who are ranked high among the members of their profession. The list includes Fred J. Taylor, division chief of the Northern Pacific; James J. Rhoads, chief of the Schuylkill division of the Pennsylvania R. R.; Henry B. Seaman, one time chief engineer of the New York Public Service Commission and now engineer of the Woolworth Corporation; Henry Turner, head of the big construction company which bears his name; Edward B. Temple, assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad system; Charles A. Bunting, electrical engineer of John Wanamaker's in Philadelphia; Aaron C. Pancoast, civil engineer of San Antonio, Texas; David B. Rushmore, chief engineer of the General Electric Company at Schenectady; John F. Murray, another assistant Pennsylvania Railroad chief. Professor George F. Blessing is now yearly turning out young engineers with the qualities necessary to make good.

In chemistry the name of Walter Rittman stands out from all the rest because of his remarkable work in the line of oils and its refinement. Beside the name of Rittman there is a host of younger chemists trained by Swarthmore's renowned professors, Alleman and Creighton, all remarkably successful in their work. In this list is the name of Frederick J. Blatz, managing chemist of the Blumenthal Leather Co., at Wilmington.

In literature, Swarthmore, with two other colleges, lays claim to Richard Harding Davis, who was a student here in 1880 and 1881. Mrs. Helen R. Martin, from whose novel, "Barnabette," the successful dramatic piece, "Erstwhile Susan" was taken, is another literary Swarthmorean. John Edwin Wells, '96, Professor in Beloit College, Wisconsin, has written a notable book, "A Manual of the Writings in Middle English."

Government and the political profession claims such men as A. Mitchell Palmer, William C. Sproul, Charles R. Miller, ex-governor of Delaware; Congressman Hicks of New York, and Congressman Emmor Roberts, of the Fourth New Jersey district.

The law has for its representatives such often-heard-of men as Francis Shunk Brown, attorney general of Pennsylvania; Howard Cooper Johnson, Walter T. Gilkyson and Judge William Butler, Jr., of the Chester County bench.

The ministry has Alexander Griswold Cummins, rector of Christ Church, Poughkeepsie. Education has Francis G. Blair, Commissioner of Education in Illinois, and Thomas A. Jenkins, Professor of French Philology at the University of Chicago. Surgery has the famous Dr. Edward Martin.

Finance and business has a list of names altogether too great to catalogue here. Such men as Morris L. Clothier, Robert M. Janney, Percival Parrish, Charles Hodge, George Brooke, T. Janney Brown, E. Pussy Passmore, Walter Lippincott, Rowland Conly, William E. Sweet, George S. and William P. Worth, and Charles C. Miller are all men of note in the business world and all have given back to Alma Mater in return for what she has done for them.

Swarthmore Field, the $50,000 gift of Morris L. Clothier to the college, and Alumni Field, being constructed by the rest of the alumni, the response to the call for a million dollar jubilee endowment fund, are proofs which the past Halcyon year offers for the loyalty and devotion of Swarthmore alumni.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

The Swarthmore College Alumni Association

E. C. WILSON

ON the 8th of May, 1875, the classes of '73 and '74 made the first plans for the organization of the Alumni Association. On May 29th, 1875, the constitution was adopted, and in 1881 the charter was obtained; the Association was incorporated on January 16th, 1882. From that time to the present day, the Association has carried on its work, endeavoring, to the best of its ability, (to use the words of the constitution) "to promote union and good feeling among Alumni, and to advance in all proper ways the interests of Swarthmore College."

THE HALCYON of 1918

The Western Swarthmore Club

THE Western Swarthmore Club originated in December, 1903, when at an informal dinner about a dozen Swarthmoreans met and organized the Chicago Swarthmore Club. The Chicago Club met for a year or so at irregular intervals, and, having elected Francis E. Broomell secretary and treasurer, decided to widen its field and offer an annual free scholarship, consisting of board, room, and tuition. The club was then called the Western Swarthmore Club, and its membership increased to about sixty graduates in the West. In 1915-16 the plan of the scholarship was changed and the club now offers annually two scholarships of $200 each, one to a woman and one to a man. The scholarship is open for competition to all high and preparatory school graduates west of the Allegheny Mountains, and the club has sent six students through the freshman year, and has been the means of inducing more than twice that number to choose Swarthmore. In this way all the principal high schools in the Middle West hear of Swarthmore every year and the students carry her good name wherever they go. The Western Swarthmore Club has thus proved Swarthmore spirit not by words, but by deeds. The present officers are: President, Professor T. A. Jenkins, '87; Treasurer, Francis E. Broomell, '93; Secretary, F. M. Simons, Jr., '09. All communications should be addressed to the secretary, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.

Club scholars: 1906-1907, Murat Louis Johnson, A.B., 1909, Kentucky; 1907-1908, Clyde Insley Blanchard, ex-1911, Missouri; 1908-1909, Alice Elizabeth Masten, ex-1912, Indiana; 1909-1910, James Jacob Schock, 1913, Oklahoma; 1910-1911, Edwin Adams Lucas, 1914, Illinois; 1911-1912, Leila Eloise Vest, 1915, Iowa; 1912-1913, John Ewing Orchard, 1916, Nebraska; 1913-1914, Clarence Gates Myers, 1917, Iowa; 1914-1915, Jess Halsted, 1918, Wisconsin; 1915-1916, Allin Hugh Pierce, 1919, Iowa; 1916-1917, Mary Alexander Campbell, 1920, Kentucky, and Francis Arthur Jenkins, 1920, Illinois.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

The Trenton Swarthmore Club

THE Trenton Swarthmore Club is an organization of the Swarthmore men located in Trenton, N. J., formed primarily for the purpose of furnishing a scholarship in Swarthmore College to the preparatory schools in Trenton and vicinity.

The organization offers yearly a competitive honor scholarship of $200 for a period of two years. The Club awards the scholarship to a male applicant from the neighboring territory, which includes seven of the most prominent preparatory schools within a radius of ten miles.

The requirements of application are based somewhat on those of the Rhodes Scholarship, and embrace scholarship, character, moral force, and physical development. The purpose of the award is to secure and to induce men from that vicinity to enter Swarthmore, the aim of the committee being to attract and develop all-around men, since no particular stress is given to any one line of activity.

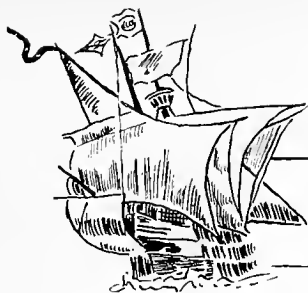

The officers are: Wm. M. Muschert, President; J. Augustus Cadwalader, Vice President; James E. Mitchell, Secretary-Treasurer. Other members of the Board are Owen Moon, Jr., Chairman Scholarship Committee; William K. Hoyt, Harvey Satterthwaite, Dr. A. W. Atkinson and J. Stephens Van Syckel.

Club Scholars: 1910-1911, Howard Mahlon Buckman, 1914, Trenton High School; 1911-1912, Hyland Lorraine Hodgson, ex-1915, Trenton High School; 1912-1913, Edwin Augustus Tomlinson, 1916, George School; Stanley Avoyn Pennock, ex-1917, Peddie Institute; 1914-1915, Frederick Stockham Donnelly, 1918, New Jersey State Model School, and Walter W. Maule, 1918, George School; 1915-1916, Franklin Preston Buckman, 1919, Trenton High School; 1916-1917, Frank Whitson Fetter, 1920, Princeton High School.

The New York Swarthmore Club

THE New York Swarthmore Club is an informal organization somewhat similar to the Philadelphia Club, possessing neither constitution nor by-laws, although it has recently elected officers and a board of governors. The club which now includes in its membership nearly one hundred Swarthmore men resident in New York or nearby towns, holds a semi-annual reunion, either a dinner or a smoker, which is attended usually by about sixty Swarthmoreans. The officers for 1917 are: President, Frederick A. Seaman, 1883; Secretary and Treasurer, Edward P. Palmer, 1906; Board of Governors, Joseph Fitch, 1879; Frederick A. Seaman, 1883; Henry C. Turner, 1893; R. Grant Bennett, 1897; John P. Broomell, 1899; Maurice E. Griest, 1904; Edward P. Palmer, 1906; Henry C. Field, 1909; W. Laurie Seaman, 1915.

THE HALCYON of 1918

The Philadelphia Swarthmore Club

THE Philadelphia Swarthmore Club was founded in 1889. Good fellowship and love of Alma Mater have been the keystone in the arch of the Club's continued success. Since 1889 the Club has held, without interruption, an annual meeting and dinner, the Philadelphia Association being the only one with such a record. The dinner this year was held on February 24. The first annual dinner, held on April 14, 1889, was attended by some sixty members. The attendance now averages about one hundred and seventy-five. The Club has never had any regular officers, but it is the practice to appoint each year a committee to take charge of the following year's meeting and dinner. During his life, Mr. Gerrit E. H. Weaver was the moving spirit and chairman of this committee. From the date of his death until 1914 Howard Cooper Johnson acted as chairman. For the past three years Charles C. Miller, of Riverton, N. J., has headed the committee.

Swarthmore Club of West Jersey

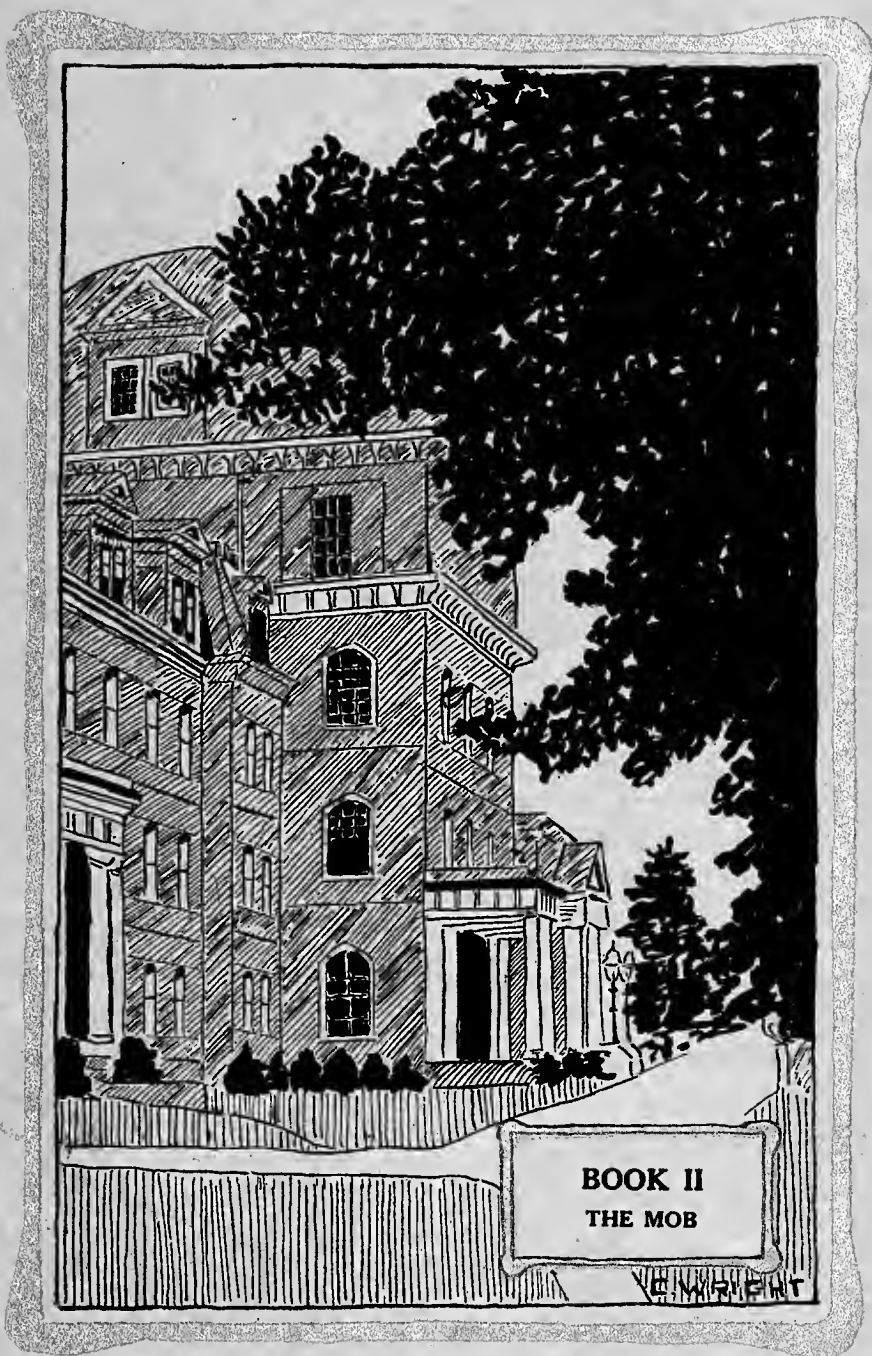

A MEETING of Swarthmore graduates and ex-students living in and around Riverton and Moorestown, N. J., was held on March 31, 1911, and an organization effected as the Swarthmore Club of West Jersey. Its purpose is expressed in the following: "We, the subscribers, hereby form ourselves into an association for the purpose of promoting the best interests of Swarthmore College. Dated this 31st day of March, A. D. 1911." The association now numbers thirty-six members.

THE HALCYON of 1918

JAMES EVERETT ALLEN

WEST CHESTER

Chemical Engineering

About Ben Adhem had nothing on this curly headed engineer from the un-Arabian wilds of West Chester. Ever since he was a prize-winning child at Sunday School his name has led all the rest, even as it does now. When he runs for his express train at the other end of the line he leads the stop-watch. May his tribe increase.

ELIZABETH HOLBERT ANDREWS, K A Θ

RUTHERFORD, N. J.

English

If you know the requirements for the positions on a hockey team you will not have to be told what Andy plays. A halfback must be tireless, brainy, and capable of team work. That is the position Andy holds on the team and in the class. Whether it's working for the Soph Show or spending an afternoon at College Settlement, you will always find her in position and playing up to form.

HELEN MARIE ATKINS

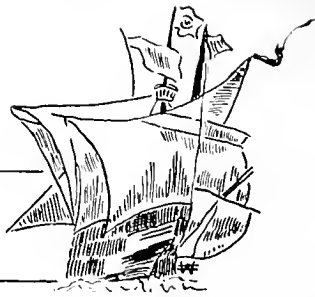

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J.

Public Speaking

"Oh, hello, dearie! How are you? Oh, I'm fine, thanks—only a little bit tired. Hhm? Yes, I went to the dance last night, and one the night before. Then I'm working awfully hard on my Junior recital, you know. My dear, have you outlined that oration yet? It took me hours! Well, I must be going. Come around and see me some time; you never come around to my room. Hhm? Oh, yes, I'll try to. Bye-bye, dearie. See you later."

THE HALCYON of 1918

CLARA ATLEE, K A Θ
RIVERTON

French

Some one said she would be a big woman some day, and Clara is trying to live up to the prediction. In spite of this, however, she is the acme of daintiness and precision. She possesses that now almost obsolete faculty of making herself intelligible to her fellow men without the use of slang. For Clara, you must know, comes from an old family, and in her youth the only cellar door she was permitted to slide down was her own cellar door.

FRANCES LAURA BAIRD
WILMINGTON

Latin

Frances is one of those people who thrive on work and responsibility. The more overworked she is, the more she enjoys life. She takes everything seriously—from aesthetic dancing to a course with Brooks:—and it's a safe bet she'll pull an "A" in both. In fact, she gets everything she goes after, whether what she happens to want at the moment is her hockey letter, or season basketball tickets for the girls. If you want tutoring done, an extra alto for the Glee Club, or information on any subject, known or unknown, go to Frances and you'll get it.

HELEN ELIZABETH BALLEIN, K A Θ
WINFIELD, KAN.

French

When Helen heard the HALCYON staff was working on the Junior write-ups she expressed a desire that all reference to music be left out of hers. That makes a pretty big gap—still there remains something to be said. "Beeny" is famous for saying exactly what she thinks about everything and everybody—and she usually has a good many thoughts. She is blessed with an artistic temperament to a degree which makes her uncommonly likeable, and is just enough different from other people to be interesting. In fact, there's only one like her, and she's it.

THE HALCYON of 1918

HAROLD FREEMAN BARNES SWARTHMORE

Electrical Engineering

Remember the sweet bass voice of the Major General's in the 1918 Soph Show? That was Freeman's.

Remember the Junior Founders' Day Song last year? That was Freeman's.

Remember the part of "Avarice" in "Happiness"? That was Freeman's.

Remember the mandolin at the college dances? That was Freeman's.

As we go to press, J. R. H. of '88 is contemplating a poetic rhapsody, "When Freeman Barnes is Ragging O'er the Keys."

DOROTHEA BELL, Δ Γ

NEW YORK

Chemistry

With her Peter Thompson dresses
And her Peter Bellish walk,
Her chemical devotion,
And her line of baseball talk,
(She is one of seven brothers;
Straight-forward as a man),
Original describes her:

"Open the door, Senseless, and see what the Corson-bird or the Bush-animal desires. Come on in, or I'll knock you down! What? Food? Have a pretzel; some chocolate cake. Laundry box just arrived. Shut up! You want to be careful or you'll make me mad. That's the kind of guy I am. Yes, sir, Cleveland is the sixth city in size and the first in quality. McGovern, Kilbane and Kid Blau come from there. Get out the ammunition, Nye; here comes Ogden! Gee, that makes me sore! Get out of the road; me to Philadelphia for a meal."

THE HALCYON of 1918

DAVID MONROE BODINE, Φ Κ Ψ

TRENTON

Economics

In the next cage, ladies and gentlemen, we have the Bodine-bird, a ferocious looking specimen which in reality is governed by a sweet and gentle disposition. Once in twenty-four hours he emerges from the dressing room with his physiognomy encased in an abbreviated baseball muzzle. And from behind these bars of protection he is heard to exclaim in a powerful voice—"Shoot—that—ball! Follow! 'ata-a-boy."

Doc would love me if I did. Well, Harriet, I hate to leave you, but I must slip over and mix some chemicals fur mein freund. Olive oil."

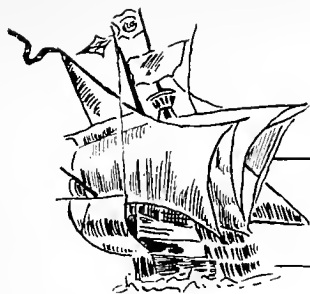

ETHELWYN BOWER, Η Β Φ

NEW YORK

Mathematics

"Winnie" never gets anything but an "A" in English; never eats between meals; never has been a bit of a floss; never misses an opportunity to participate in all the violent forms of exercise, except dancing; never partakes of any but the most fattening foods. And "Winnie" never, never fusses.*

*What, never? Well, hardly ever.

THE HALCYON of 1918

KENNETH RENT BROWN, Φ K Ψ
PENDLETON, IND.

Chemistry

If you're looking for perfection in roomies, you're looking for "Ken" Brown. Being an "A" student, he will furnish you with the incentive for study which you need. Being amply supplied with loose change, he will be a source of funds from time to time; and you can pay him back whenever you like. Being a gambler at heart, he will never refuse to match you for a chocolate bar. When the 'phone rings down the hall he does not ask you to answer it; he simply calls out, "There goes that ?$%&—'phone! Answer it!— Why the X don't you answer it!"

Ella is a woman of one idea: getting through college with a minimum of work, worry, and wasted energy. We think she has another idea, but we've never been able to discover it. Maybe you can—if you watch her in class some time. She has been known to sit through an entire recitation hour, hands folded in lap, eyes fixed on a crack in the wall, a rapt expression of sublime reverie on her countenance. She has never revealed to anyone what she sees through the crack in the wall during these seances. And we've never dared to ask.

"David had his Jonathan, Johnson had his Boswell; but "Peter" has her "Husky," and thereby hangs a tale. "Peter" and "Husky" are as different as day and night, yet they live in peace and concord, and the reason is—"Husky." There are two reasons why no one ever disagrees with "Husky." The first is because she is so amiable and obliging she seldom gives you cause; the second is because she has a genius for pinching and pounding. Man, that woman's a terror with her hands.

THE HALCYON of 1918

ELEANOR PALMER STABLER, K A Θ
GEORGE SCHOOL

Psychology and Education

Eleanor is a systematic spirit. She has a systematic mind but not a systematic heart. She will not acknowledge it, of course, but she does more for her fellow sufferers in a day than most of us do in a year. But have you noticed anything different about her lately? You might get her to explain the incident of the ladder separating George and Marion in "Tono-Bungay." But why speak of love?

DAVID JOHN STICKNEY, K Σ
BUFFALO

Chemistry

D. John Stickney is not a bad sort of fellow. In fact, there are people around college who rather like "Jerry." He's a most engagingly agreeable cuss, and has a knack of selling dance programs that is positively uncanny in its effectiveness. He has an even temper, and while he does not make a hobby of rough-housing, nevertheless, he can be seduced into a tumble if the right methods are applied. He likes to kid people; rather dotes on this style of self-entertainment—and "Jerry" is a fair kidder at that.

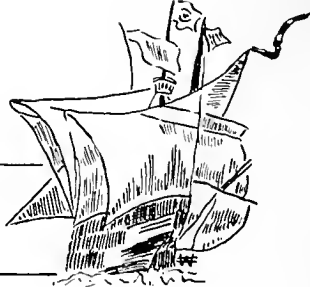

ROLAND PANCOAST STRATTON, T A O
MOORESTOWN

Political Science

In a dozen or more towns scattered from North Carolina to Northern Pennsylvania you could find a trail of broken hearts. The reason, you ask? Well, "Roly" and his moustache visited there last summer on Chautauqua. But when "Roly" returned to College his charms disappeared with his moustache and he had to content himself with such pastimes as football, soccer and lacrosse.

THE HALCYON of 1918

WILLIAM SIMPSON TAYLOR

CHESTER

Chemical Engineering

King of the post office is Taylor—Grand Omnipotent Monarch of the Cubby Holes. No Phoenix? Mail misplaced? Taylor is the culprit. But don't be too hard on him. His mistakes are merely those of commission. Omission is not Taylor's sin. At least, he did not omit to hang beautiful lace curtains on his quadrangle windows. Those pure-white curtains save Wharton from the utter hopelessness of civilization.

MARY ALBERTA THATCHER, Δ Γ

SWARTHMORE

Public Speaking

"Thatch" lived on Third West Junior year. You can ask anyone where she roomed. When she was appointed to keep order on the hall your ears could scarcely comprehend the transformation. First she started to keep herself quiet and immediately the problem of order on the hall was settled.

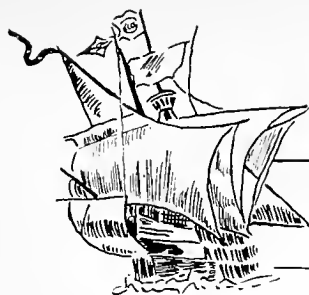

JOHN WILLIAM TRIMMER, T A O

MECHANICSBURG

Mathematics

Yes, Jawn does take a few naps in Looley's class, and he doesn't often stun you with gatling gun speed in replying to your questions. But Jawn can sleep through most all of his mathematics classes and still come out better than a lot of others. And when he does answer you, he generally gives you the benefit of his thought—and Jawn has a good stock of 'em. Remember that old tale of the hare and the tortoise?

THE HALCYON of 1918

EMILY LOIS VAN LOON

PHILADELPHIA

Biology

A professor once remarked of Lois, "She's just like a pansy blossom." But when you consider that this pansy is the only girl in her section at chemistry conference, that she is intimately acquainted with the internal workings of the whole cat family, and that she thrives on physics and all the "ologies," you must acknowledge, "She's some pansy."

LOUISE WYNKOOP WAYGOOD

GLENSIDE

English

Louise takes to water like a duck, to learning like a shark, and to Y. W. C. A. like a saint. We shall refrain from continuing the figure in regard to Chautauqua. When we asked her what sort of summer she had had, she replied with that all inclusive radiance, "Perfectly lovely, thank you." Shall we let that suffice?

HELEN MARIE WESTFALL, Π Β Φ

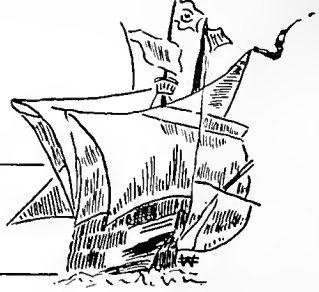

MILWAUKEE

Latin

The thermometer registered five above. Befurred and besweated damsels made their shivering way about the draughty corridors. Down the west stairs strolled "Westy," wearing a white shirtwaist and skirt. "Oh, it isn't cold," she explained cheerfully. "You ought to come out to Milwaukee if you want cold weather. I am just longing for a good cool snap to make me think I am at home." And humming blithely she passed on out of sight.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

GEORGE LLOYD WILSON, ΦΣΚ

RIDLEY PARK

Economics

And lo! from the wilds of Ridley Park there came a big bad man. He was destined to tear the hearts of the co-eds to shreds and to revolutionize the ancient customs of the college. But the Hand of Fate ruled that his heart should go elsewhere, and that the college should not be radically altered. So this mighty man turned his wrath in other quarters, and the football world suffereth many broken legs as a result of his prowess.

HELEN ELIZABETH WILSON, ΠΒΦ

HARRISBURG

History

Will of her own
Intellectual tone
Laughter to spare
Lively for fair
Yea, Willy!

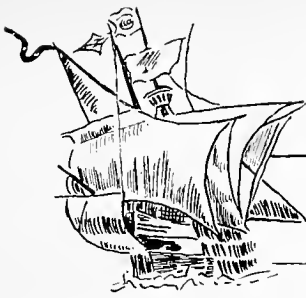

CATHARINE WRIGHT ΠΒΦ

BALTIMORE

English

Oh, we've known co'eds before,
By the score;
And we've liked them heretofore,
Less or more.
But the one that we like best,
A notch above the rest,
Is Catharine Wright, who comes
From Baltimore.
She is pretty, she is clever,
She's a fusser, but she never
Shirked her work or shirked her play for any man.
She is stylish and athletic,
Popular and democratic,
And our class is glad she came here
To Swarthmore.

THE HALCYON of 1918

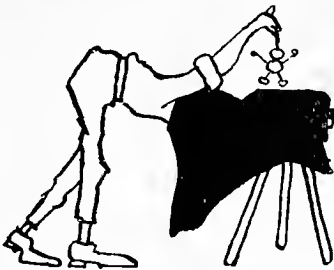

ETHEL REID YOUNG, K K T

CAMDEN

Mathematics

Ethel to room-mate: "Oh, what do you think, I'm going to the $\Sigma\Phi$ dance! Isn't that a joke? And whom do you suppose I'm going with? _____! No, I never met him, but I'll have a good time. I should worry. Where's the racket? Rough-house on third East? Good-bye—see you later."

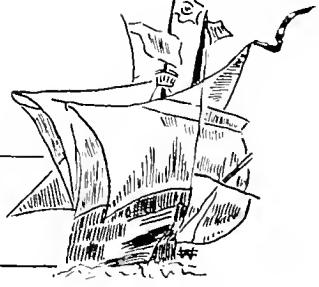

And so saying, the eugenic baby withdraws.

The Musical Season

THE 1916-17 season of the Musical Clubs was easily the most successful in their history. This year everything was conducted on a larger scale than had heretofore been attempted—the trips were longer, there were more of them, larger audiences attended, and more concerts were held. Owing largely to the great aid rendered by the alumni at the concerts in Baltimore, Washington, and New York, the trips were successful beyond the rosiest expectations and Swarthmore received much enviable reputation among people whose sons and daughters are desirable prospects for our student body.

The Joint Concert with Haverford in the ball room of the Bellevue-Stratford was the biggest single thing in which the Swarthmore Clubs ever participated. From every standpoint it was a most gratifying achievement and indications are that this function will be an annual affair. The home concert came two weeks later with an entirely new program, and the big home crowd applauded generously throughout.

Professor Roy Bennett Pace appeared on the program as director after an absence of two years, and the much improved technique of the clubs is largely due to his efficient and untiring effort. Boyd Barnard rounded out his career of four years' brilliant service to the clubs by acting as leader in this banner season. Paul Gemmill also completed his fourth year in the capacity of magician. This season's act has been the biggest feature of every program. Gemmill had for his assistant, Drew Pearson, whose "blank and receptive" mind was invaluable. Manager Walter Timmis is the man responsible for the high standard set for this year. By arranging the best schedule the clubs ever had and engineering the Bellevue-Stratford Concert, the biggest social event of the college year, he has won for himself the approbation of the entire student body.

Schedule 1916-17

LAN CHEN

LAN CHEN was the product of the fertile brain of one Paul B. (Huckle) Berry, former distinguished member of '18, whose natural inclination prompted him toward an uplift of the stage. Paul asked us to place our confidence in him—said he would not disappoint us for a real, live, original play that would delight all—and he made good.

Twenty charming musical numbers, accompanied by a ten-piece orchestra the equal of many in Philadelphia theaters, was perhaps the most salient feature of this remarkable production. The songs were the result of a careful selection from a variety of light opera hits of past years, so ingeniously chosen and arranged that a sparkling, satisfying performance, full of surprises, was developed therefrom.

The plot was largely original in order to allow leeway for the many touches of local color, the innovations, and snatches of humor with which Lan Chen abounded. A broken coin in the possession of the Princess Chan, the complement of which belonged to her long lost sister who afterwards was discovered as the beautiful juggler girl, formed the basis of the action from which all sorts of situations arose.

Ten stars led in the stage interpretations although practically every member of nineteen eighteen took part in the task of putting on the big show. Bill Reilly handled the managerial end, Rawson, Heald, and Brown took care of the auxiliaries, and Bob Ogden acted as chairman of the executive committee.

CAST OF "LAN CHEN"

THE HALCYON of 1918

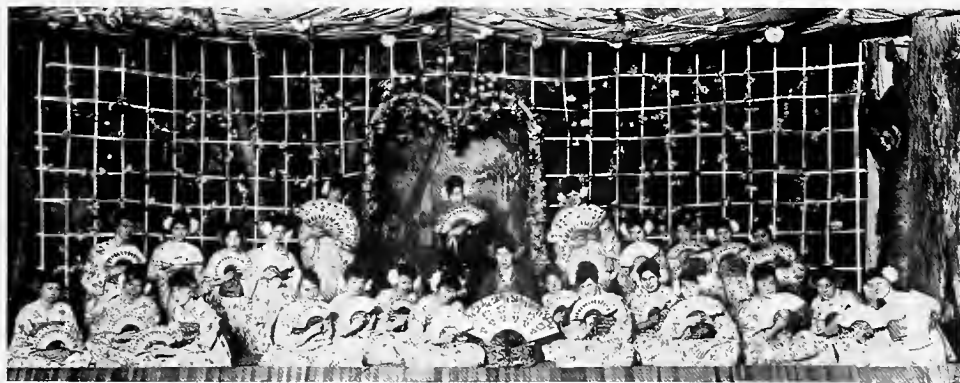

Berry, as Ko-ko the Lord High Executioner, was one of the most uproariously funny figures that ever graced Collection Hall. His songs, "The Little List," "Tit-willow," and "Derry-down-derry," were the last word in facial and bodily contortion, and his natural ability to scent humor in anything was amply provided for.

The selections, "O Beautiful," and "O Little Ball," sung in the pure soprano of Helen Atkins, well-nigh entranced the audience by their beauty. Louise Lewis, as Princess Chan, with a clear voice, almost the exact counterpart of that of Miss Atkins, sang "On a Day," "We Are United," and "Stars Are Brightly Shining" with so natural and sympathetic a rendition that it was a delight to see and hear her.

Katisha, the court lady with the single tooth, was played by Ruth Kistler in a thoroughly appreciative style. Lloyd Wilson, as Pooh-bah, received no less than five encores to his solo, "I've Gotta Motter." Freeman Barnes' portrayal of Prince Oscar manifested rare ability both from a musical and a dramatic standpoint. His Majesty, the Emporer Chi, was delineated by the elongated Bew, whose good nature rippled serenely through it all.

In the part of The Honorable Marcus Brutus Snap, Ralph Gawthrop displayed a barn-storming genius long suspected. Ewing Corson, as Ima Knut, and Ralph Heacock as the Chinee Soje Man, contributed largely to the comic aspect of the show, while the Ghost Song of Catherine Wright, disguised as Pitti Sing, was a dainty bit of music.

Lan Chen, colossal in wealth of color and detail, stands out in relief with a prodigiousness that will always be remembered by '18 as an achievement worth while. For three hours a packed house absorbed the fun and merriment that flowed like a continuous fountain from the start, and when it was all over, the audience wondered if professional skill could have materially improved Lan Chen.

"Happiness"

HE admirably enacted student presentation of Allen Davis' morality play, "Happiness," came as an attractive climax to the oratorical musical, and athletic display of Founders' Day. Personifications of virtues and vices, characters from the old style of morality play, were seen acting under modern circumstances and the result was intensely interesting.

Practically all of the good and evil qualities on the moral calendar were seen in the play through which was woven a pretty love story centered about Happiness and her companions, Strength, Dreams, Good Times, False Hope, Career, Celebrity, and Discouragement. In popularity of its theme, individual interpretation, and general effectiveness, Happiness stood out a positive compliment to the cast and to the directive talent of Elizabeth B. Oliver.

The plot of the play was quite simple and evident. Helen Coles, in the title role, leaves a country home to study music in the city. She disdains the aid of Strength, and in the company of Dreams and Money, reaches the city where she is charmed by Good Time, Career, Celebrity, and False Hope. Her companion, Money, failing her, she is deserted by these, but is rescued by Strength, her lover.

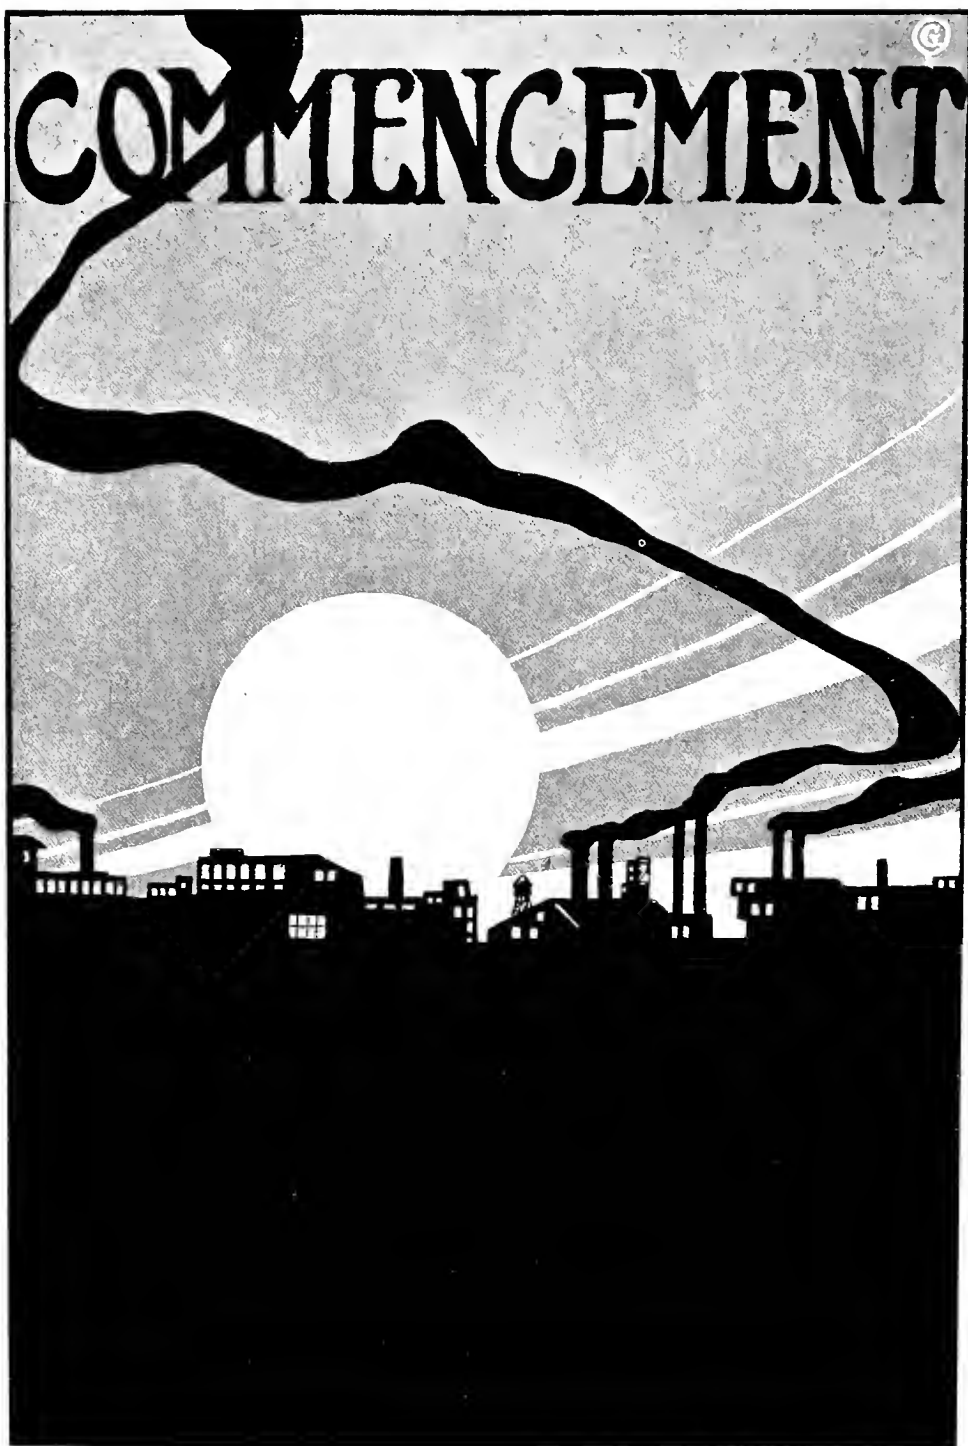

For a time she leans on Strength, but is saved from yielding to him by Pride. In a highly dramatic scene on the Fields of Hunger, Happiness finally calls upon him to save her from Despair, Temptation, Passion, Dishonesty, Hunger, Defeat, and Death. The final scene brings us to the home of Happiness where Friendliness, aided by Strength, puts Gossip and Skin Flint to rout. Later Happiness bids good-bye to Dreams and promises to be the wife of Strength.

FOUNDERS' DAY

COMMENCEMENT

THE HALCYON OF 1918

Commencement Week

1916

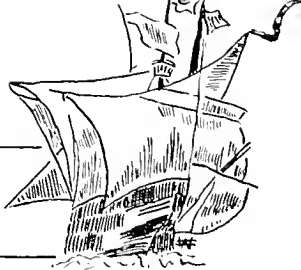

WITH the completion of the annual race through the text-books and a week of satisfactory accounting to the Faculty for the knowledge contained therein, behind; with the Freshman class safely ushered homeward the College was thrown open for a few days of relaxation. To the Seniors it was the last "loaf" prior to launching their boats into the turbulent stream of life; to the under-classmen it was an opportunity to enjoy a few days of freedom after the college restrictions, which are observed only as an example to the Freshmen, were removed.

As the Alumni wanted to hold their reunions on Saturday, Prexy and Mrs. Swain entertained the Seniors at luncheon on Thursday in the Library. The Class Day exercises were held on Friday in the amphitheatre. President Orchard reviewed briefly the contributions made by the class of '16 to the everlasting history of the College. He was followed immediately by "Jack" Riffert, who presented prizes to those who had so generously devoted their services to Alma Mater. The Seniors presented "The Merry Wives of Windsor" in a manner that would have made old William himself envious. The leading lights were "Jim" Melick, Eliza Ulrich and Evelyn Miller, not to mention many lesser stars of the "all star" production. Later in the day old Whittier Field passed into history, with one more victory added to its illustrious record, when Rutgers met a 4-2 defeat.

On Sunday, Ernest Percy Bicknell gave the Baccalaureate address. John Orchard planted the class ivy and Hugh Denworth talked while it forgot its associations with Mount Vernon and took root alongside the library. A last opportunity was given the Seniors to make up "over cuts" in Collection.

Next day Governor Ralston, of Indiana, gave the Commencement address. His address was closely rivaled upon the evening of the same day by J. "Pork" Murch, who presided at the Senior banquet at the Strath Haven. When the curtain fell at the close of the dance the class of 1916 stepped out upon the broad veranda of life with an early morning start into its mysteries.

Football in 1916

By William W. Roper

COACH ROPER

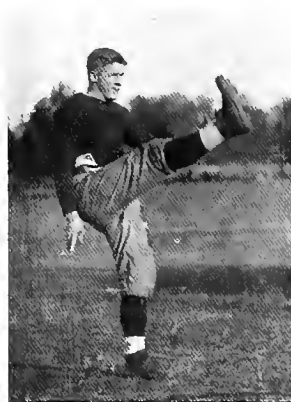

WHILE the result of the Haverford game was disappointing in the extreme, I feel that the record of the football team of 1916 can be looked back on with considerable satisfaction.

Football teams are developed to win games, but it is equally important after a game is finished to take victory or defeat in the proper spirit. I was greatly impressed with the manly manner in which the team and the undergraduates took the disappointment of the final game. The schedule was a hard one, especially hard owing to the fact that so many games were played out of town.

The play of the team in the Pennsylvania game was particularly gratifying. Every member of the team played his best game and with a determination and fight that could not be denied. While Pennsylvania out-rushed us they could not score, owing to the fact that the Swarthmore defense always stiffened up in its own territory. It was one of the best defensive exhibitions I have seen for a long time. The best offense shown by the team all year was given in the second half of the Dickinson game when two touchdowns were scored in quick succession by rushing the ball.

It would be impossible and unfair to pick out any member or members of the team for special commendation. The entire squad worked hard and conscientiously all fall. Captain Endicott was an inspiring and capable leader and developed surprisingly during the season as a punter.

PENN GAME—SWARTHMORE UNDER A PUNT

History of a Great Season

TWO salient features, the summit and abyss of the team's fortunes, namely, the victory from Pennsylvania and the defeat to Haverford, stand out in relief over a season long remembered. The first, appearing second on our schedule, represented the high water mark of a brilliant eleven; the second, the final game, saw only the embers of a once great team. Looking backward upon a season that showed nothing but the acme of promise until its last days when most of our hopes were blasted, there is something both intensely satisfying and yet bitterly distasteful.

Early in October, the team composed mostly of veterans, had been rounded into a combination that looked mighty good to Coach Roper. It was hard-working, ambitious, and willing to fight every minute. The line was heavy and experienced, the backfield fast and plucky, with team work and signal play of a high order. But it was untried, and the opening contest with Lafayette on a strange land would tell the tale. In one of the hardest fought battles ever decided on March Field, in the face of a melting sun that caked the ground and caused clouds of dust to envelop the contestants, without a breath of air stirring, the Garnet jerseys outgamed their powerful opponents and came through with a 10 to 6 win.

Old Penn, next on the schedule, carefully considered how best to beat Swarthmore the following Saturday on Franklin Field, but she missed her guess. Endicott's team would not be beaten. Time and again the big Red and Blue warriors charged the lighter Garnet players and ripped Swarthmore's line for substantial gains. But always in the shadow of her own goalposts, Swarthmore was invincible. Penn hammered away many times when her opponents had been forced within the ten-yard line, but each time the little Quakers hurled back the invaders and recovered the ball. Swarthmore earned a touchdown in the second period when Alva Bush, at the height of his career, pulled down a forward pass and tore twenty yards, through a field infested with Penn tacklers, for the only score of the game. Penn, desperate in the waning minutes, strove with superhuman efforts to turn the tide, but to no avail, and Swarthmore was accorded the proud distinction of having humbled mighty Pennsylvania.

Every man of the Garnet eleven fought with the keen zest of a long anticipated struggle. Swarthmore knew she had to face a mighty team and entered the contest resolved if necessary to die just as hard as it is in the power of eleven resolute men to die, who are dedicated to a great and noble work. The big Quaker team, finding itself met on even terms by an unflinching array of grit, representing what to them seemed an inferior aggregation, grew nervous, and as the game progressed with the Swarthmore eleven ever growing stronger, was unable to cross the goal, and finally succumbed, 6 to 0. At that time Haverford seemed very small and far away.

The very momentum of Roper's fighting eleven carried it along for four more victories. Franklin and Marshall was disposed of in the third game by the same score, 6 to 0. Ursinus, with a team heralded as great, went down on Founders' Day before the onslaught of the Swarthmore steamroller, 13 to 3. Hopkins was the next to fall, 14 to 6, and a week later Columbia was pillaged, 18 to 0. Then followed the memorable duel with the formidable Dickinson eleven, recognized by Garnet enthusiasts as the last big test of the year. The loss of Donnelly in the Ursinus game now began to be felt. Bush had been ill for several weeks, and Clarke, the acting center, was forced to retire from the game. For the first time in the entire season, Swarthmore's opponents took the lead, but the Garnet by a splendid offensive in the fourth session regained the advantage. The Carlisle team needed a touchdown to tie the count and Welch, the sensational Indian halfback, was sent into the breach. He had three minutes to play, but he made good and Swarthmore was forced to acknowledge an even break after six straight victories.

HAVERFORD GAME

THE HALCYON of 1918

HAVERFORD GAME

With only a few days remaining before the last and most vital game of all, that hydra of the gridiron, the injury jinx, ravaged and desolated the once powerful Swarthmore machine until it hardly resembled its former self. McGovern, star of four seasons, and Michael, most promising of the freshmen regulars, were completely incapacitated just when their services were most needed. Gloom pervaded the Swarthmore camp, but even after the shock of this last straw, followers of the Swarthmore eleven could not reconcile themselves to anything but a victory over their old rivals.

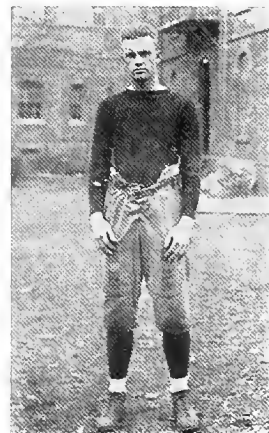

Haverford, with a team carefully nursed by Mike Bennett, and developed with a view toward capturing the Swarthmore game above all else, took the Garnet eleven almost by surprise. With a team work and intricacy of play that was bewildering, she managed to sweep down the field for a touchdown in the second quarter. In the fourth she got near enough to her goal for Crosman to send a beautiful drop kick between the uprights. Then came Swarthmore's magnificent drive which saved her from a shut-out and the game ended, 10 to 7, in favor of the Scarlet and Black.

It is the old story of a powerful machine disintegrated by the hand of fate on the eve of a momentous event. Swarthmore, however, is not letting her thoughts dwell on the unpleasant aspects of the 1916 season. The Roper-Endicott combination was one of the few great Garnet elevens and its record will always be a source of intense pride to every Swarthmorean. True, it lost a much desired contest, but human ingenuity and pluck could not avert the incidents which led to the final disappointment. The glorious victory over Penn, coupled with its complement of five clean wins from other strong institutions, and the well earned tie with the fighting Dickinson team, all serve to alleviate the twinge of bitterness which marked the close of the schedule. Swarthmore is very proud of her team and of the men who made it. William Roper and Roy Mercer are two of the best coaches in the country and Swarthmore was exceptionally fortunate in being favored with the services of both men at the same time. This year Roper has heeded the call of Princeton, his Alma Mater, and Mercer will direct the destinies of the team. Ally Cornog will captain the eleven in his fourth year of varsity football, and with only five men lost through graduation, namely, ex-Captain Endicott, McGovern, Clarke, Provost, and Smith, the 1917 team should follow in the footsteps of its illustrious predecessor. The giant, Bush, has left college, but ten regulars, Ally Cornog, Donnelly, Stow, Ridpath, Wilson, Johnson, Olin, Gillespie, Mealy, and Michael will return to form the nucleus of another sterling team.

Prospects for 1917

By Dr. E. LeRoy Mercer

ROY MERCER

WITH a majority of last fall's football squad still undergraduates in college and with the probable but uncertain prospect that four or five or more of next year's freshman class will be football players, it would seem reasonable to predict a real Swarthmore eleven for 1917.

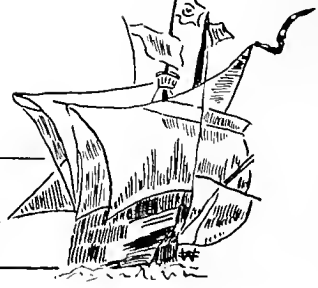

The loss of such men as ex-Captain Endicott and McGovern from the tackle positions, Smith from end, and Bush from the backfield will be keenly felt. They have given their best to Swarthmore and contributed to many hard-fought victories, and in return have reaped the rewards of the service. We wish them well in other lines of endeavor and trust that their experiences on the football field will add zest and determination to their work.

We have men who by playing on the scrub team have grasped enough of football ability to take up the work of those lost this year. We depend on these men to rise to the occasion and be prepared for 'varsity duty with Captain Cornog. Surely under ordinary circumstances we should have a nucleus upon which to build and mould a team. But owing to unforeseen conditions such predictions mean little at this unsettled time with the football season many months away.

Let us place prospects upon a firmer basis of which individuals are strong factors. Let us look upon our men as parts of a whole where the individual loses his identity in the team and where the team loses its identity in the college. It is not Cornog's toe, Johnson's decision, Donnelly's defense, Stow's charge, Ridpath's grit, Baker's plunge, Gillespie's tackle, Michael's interference, Wilson's weight, or Olin's determination that will win games or make the football team. It is the mould of these and many other sterling qualities that make the team, and the team is not eleven men but the whole college. Then let Swarthmore's impelling force with the football squad as her representative be the prospect for 1917. After all, that somewhat indefinable something, "College Spirit," which has to do with loyalty and love, that something which forces victory from defeat, that something which stirs the blood and quickens the pulse of the freshman and remains a part of him as long as life lasts, must be the incentive for voluntary efficient service when the call for service comes.

THE MALCYON OF 1918

Pointed Press Paragraphs

North American, October 17—Like a Vial of Nitroglycerin, Swarthmore is a Little Thing with a Big Kick.

North American, October 25—Pitt, Swarthmore, Hughes, and Wilson haven't been beaten so far this year.

The Bulletin, November 6—The big colleges gather a lot of chest measurements by talking of their big four. How about the little four? It's not so weak and helpless. 1. Pitt. 2. Brown. 3. Swarthmore. 4. Tufts.

North American, November 20—The Swarthmore and Haverford are Quaker colleges, but you wouldn't think so if you played against their football elevens.

North American, November 20.—The Yale-Harvard football game next Saturday will have the call, but the real playing of the day will be at the Swarthmore-Haverford contest.

Evening Ledger, November 25—Swarthmore-Haverford! Who said "passive resistance"?

Bob Fokwell, in Pennsylvania Official Program, October 14—The Swarthmore team was too quiet to suit me. I knew they had a great team and Lafayette knows it now.

Telegraph, October 30—Coach Roper expected to shake up the Swarthmore team (headline). Why not? Swarthmore has shaken up everything else and a little of their own medicine won't hurt them.

Review of Basketball

By Frank H. Griffin, Coach

WHEN an athletic team has lost seven out of eleven games it would ordinarily seem ridiculous to say that the team has had a successful season. The 1917 basketball team lost seven out of eleven, yet it would be absurd to class the team among the "unsuccessfals." Probably never in the history of collegiate basketball have the teams throughout the country been so uniformly strong or so evenly matched. Pittsburgh, Lehigh, Lafayette, New York University, Penn State, and the Navy had teams that ranked with the strongest that ever represented these institutions. Pittsburgh defeated State, Lehigh, and Lafayette; Swarthmore defeated Pittsburgh; and yet Lehigh, State, and Lafayette were all able to defeat the Quaker team. Lehigh beat Swarthmore by one point in an extra period, Lafayette took the long end of the score by three, while State won by an eleven point margin. If all the teams in the east were rated, Swarthmore would stand well up in the first ten. Moreover, there would be hardly eight points difference between the strongest and the weakest teams. These facts, perhaps, give some idea of the class in which Swarthmore traveled during the season just closed.

At times Captain Sproul's team played as good basketball as has ever been seen in the Hall Gymnasium, but its weakness lay in its inability to play at top form throughout the whole game.

The season was not all discouragements. Probably the most encouraging aspect of the year's work lay in the rapid development of the second-string men. In every case of need the substitute demonstrated his worth by proving equal to the occasion.

The Swarthmore team of 1918 will be forced to start the season minus three strong, seasoned, willing players, Captain Sproul, Spackman, and Alderfer. Six 'varsity men will remain as a nucleus namely, Donnelly, Boughton, Stow, Yoder, Cornog, and Yarnall, and these with some recruits from Captain Dave Bodine's whirlwind scrubs should be able to form a strong combination.

Although the 1917 team will not go down in Swarthmore history as a winning team it will stand out as a team that, struggling against great odds, played the game and played it well.

Lacrosse Review for 1916

By Walter B. Lang, Captain 1917

AT first glance the record of the 1916 lacrosse team seems almost a tragedy. Out of the nine games played only two were won, one was tied, and the other six were lost, although all by small scores. The team was, however, much better than the results would indicate. After the first game with Cornell, which was lost, primarily because of the lack of practice, it settled down and played hard, fighting lacrosse. Harvard and Swarthmore battled to a tie, which carried the game through three extra periods. Both games with Pennsylvania took extra time to decide the winner, and the Navy game went to two extra periods before it was won. Hopkins was given the hardest fight of the year, while the Lehigh game was undecided until the last few minutes of play.

Numerous injuries suffered by the regular men, together with lack of weight, combined to handicap the team to a considerable extent throughout the season. Every game was an uphill fight with the odds usually favoring the opposing side. Captain Murch, Ogden, and Baker developed a splendid offense, while Jackson, Munce and Dennis offered stubborn resistance to the scoring machine of their opponents.

It was a green team with six new men playing, but Captain Murch put so much of his own fighting spirit into it that the result was an aggregation of which Swarthmore did not feel ashamed. Next year with Coach Farley again on the job, we are looking forward to a great record.

Review of the 1916 Baseball Season

By J. Sebring Riffert, Captain

CAPTAIN RIFFERT

OLD March went out like a lion and spilled the beans for getting early dope on one of the best baseball teams Swarthmore ever had. The southern tumble never even shook the "uneys" out of the trunks and after almost a week of down-pour in Washington, the pill-chasers came back to their own back yard, a little dampened, but with more of the old fight than ever. This pep lasted through the schedule and the occasional small end of the score only sharpened cleats for the good old come-back, when we took the measure of the regular guys from some of the big burgs.

When Coach Bettger issued the first bugle for the awkward squad, he found the best bunch of diamond dusters ever assembled under the Quaker flag waiting to get in the harness. The pitching mound held hurlers like Ogden, E. Cornog, and Corse. On the receiving end we had Carris and Harry. Above all an air-tight infield composed of Sproul, A. Cornog, White, and Boughton, made it hard to see the outfield because of the brick wall effect. Back of all this the veteran outfield of Shoemaker, Brown, and Captain Riffert speared everything that leaped through to the weeds. Old "Jawn" worked like a vet all season and when some lucky busher did manage to clout one of his benders, the relief squad was back of him all the time giving the grass a chance to grow between the sacks. Such is the history en bloc of a stellar season made possible by good coaching, good ball players, and the best-ever brand of team spirit.

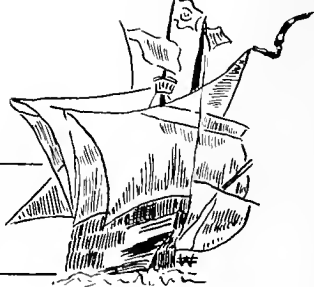

COACH BETTGER

While the record of the season tells the story we might hit a few of the high spots. Old Penn, who is our favorite doormat, took the count twice in three well-played games. The soldiers found the "pacifs" armed with a knockout for the first time in several years. The Cornell gang was glad to get out from under an 8 to 4 score, while our old friends from Ann Arbor left us the sphere on which to paint another victory for the trophy case. The season ended in a grandstand finish on Alumni Day when the Rutgers aggregation went back to the red-shale district with nothing but their suits.

CAPT.-ELECT WHITE

THE HALCYON of 1918

However, this is all over and we have next season to make history repeat itself and then some. The team is intact with the exception of the outfield who played four years together on old Whittier.

1916 Track Season

CAPT.-ELECT BONNER

THE 1916 track schedule, arranged by Manager Bill Pohlig, showed a total of eight meets, dual and intercollegiate, the largest number that has ever been billed for a Swarthmore track team. This fact called for early and consistent training on the part of every member of the squad and Coach Mercer lost no time in getting his candidates in shape for competition. A dual meet with Hopkins, just a week prior to the Penn Relays, enabled the Swarthmore team to test its ability under fire before the big event of the following Saturday. The Relays saw Bonner, Maule, McNeal, and Baker win second place in race No. 33 after a hard fight with Pitt, the winner.

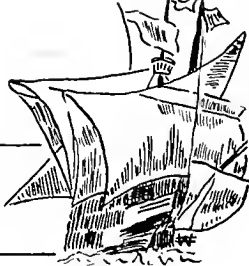

Rutgers proved a little too strong for us a week later and the New Brunswick athletes captured the meet by two points. The Middle States Championships at New York University resulted in Swarthmore securing fourth place largely through the individual efforts of her captain, Gyp Gowdy, who won both the high and the low hurdles. Baker, one of the freshman stars, was good for second place in the half-mile run. Olin and Mason secured third places in the pole vault and low hurdles, respectively, while Bonner annexed a fourth in the half-mile.

New York University's fast dash and middle distance runners forced Swarthmore into the short end of another close meet the following week by the score, 59 to 53. Then came the Haverford clash in which Swarthmore was victorious for the second successive year. The most important event in connection with this meet was the shattering of the freshman half-mile record by Gene Baker, who covered the distance in the fast time of 2 minutes 22-5 seconds. Lafayette, with one of the strongest teams she has had in years, did not have much difficulty in defeating the Garnet on the next Saturday. In the Phoenix Cup Sports, which followed, Hoot, the freshman weight star, annihilated the old discus record by ten feet, when he hurled the missile 119 feet 11 inches. Captain Gowdy was sent to the Intercollegiate games at Harvard, on May 27, where he succeeded in qualifying for the finals in the 120-yard high hurdles though he did not place.

Gyp Gowdy

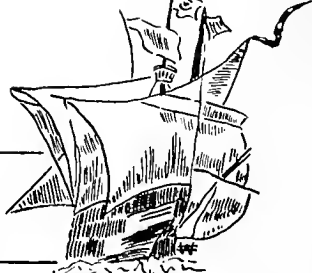

CAPTAIN GOWDY

DURING her half century of athletic history Swarthmore has developed great players in many sports, but few have excelled the prowess of the 1916 track captain, Laurance P. (Gyp) Gowdy. Though not a Gieg or an Eberle in all around ability, Gyp nevertheless holds his own among the greatest through the brilliancy of his work on the cinder-path. At present he holds no less than three freshman track records, namely, the broad jump and both hurdles, a distinction which no other Swarthmore athlete can claim. In addition he holds the college record in the broad jump and is tied with Eberle for the low hurdle mark. Eberle, the possessor of two college records and the tie with Gowdy, is the only man to outclass Gyp in this respect.

Gowdy's best work was done as an underclassman. Fresh from Exeter, where he must have been the entire team, Gyp came to Swarthmore and, together with Charlie Blackwell, proceeded to revolutionize track on Whittier Field. Blackwell was king in the sprints, but Gyp, more versatile, was called upon to make good in four events. At the Lehigh meet, in his freshman year, Gyp won twenty points for his Alma Mater by capturing the high and low hurdles, the broad jump, and the pole vault. During his four years of 'varsity competition he has never lost a hurdle race in a dual meet, though he was always entered in both. The college broad jump record of 22 feet 5 3-5 inches, which he holds, was made in his freshman year. In 1913 he was a member of the relay team which competed at the Penn Relays. At Exeter, one of his favorite events was the high jump, in which he established a record of 5 feet 7 inches. Since he had all he could handle with his other events, the coaches at Swarthmore never allowed him to enter the high jump while here. Gyp's total of points scored for the Garnet is 192, of which 55 were made in his freshman year, 21 in his sophomore year, 61 in his junior year, and 55 in his senior year. The small total for his second year was due to an injury received in mid-season. The present track team contains men who show much promise, but they have a long road to travel before they can touch the record set by Gowdy.

THE HALCYON of 1918

Review of Swimming

MANAGER BURDSALL
CAPTAIN DOWDELL

FOR three years, swimming, the baby of Swarthmore's recognized sports, was rocked in the cradle of defeat, discouragement, and lack of interest. In 1917, swimming grew strong, cast aside its swaddling clothes, and threw them at opponents with a well-aimed force and vigor more becoming a man than an infant. In 1917, it not only celebrated the first victorious swimming meet in Swarthmore history, but went ahead and walloped every collegiate contestant, losing only to the two most powerful scholastic teams in the east.

On March 8, Swarthmore probably felt in better spirits than it has since the football and track victories over Haverford last year. The cause of the self-satisfied sensation was a 41 to 12 victory over the Haverford tankmen. Our Main Line rivals were unmercifully swamped and sent home shivering and almost drowned. They failed to win a single event.

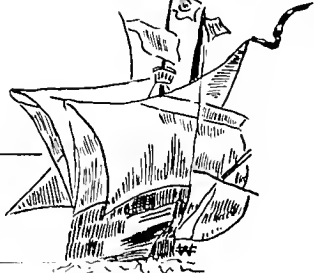

The victory over Johns Hopkins, on February 10, was a new sensation for Swarthmore. It was the first time the swimming team had ever won. The next cause for celebration occurred after the Rutgers meet on February 16, which gave Swarthmore the heavy end of a 32 to 27 score.

At Mercersburg, on February 23, the swimming team met its first stumbling block. Mercersburg Academy won the relay and the meet by the score, 29 to 24. On March 16, the record-beating Princeton Freshmen handed the Garnet squadron their final and worst ducking. Dowdell was the only man who could win an event and add five points to Swarthmore's side of a 37 to 14 score. His plunge was 70 feet, which bettered his old record by 2 feet. The fast-flying freshmen swam the relay in one minute, forty-one and two-fifths seconds, setting a new intercollegiate record for the world.

Francis Jenkins and Gilbert Tomlinson were two big factors in the rise of swimming at Swarthmore. Jenkins, a freshman from Chicago University High, established new records in the fifty and hundred yard dashes, while "Tommy," the Middle Atlantic long distance racer, hung up a new mark in the two hundred. Their swimming was responsible for the wins in the relay races, and they could always be depended upon to hand in first places in their individual events.

The one man most responsible for Swarthmore's meteoric rise in the swimming world is Marc Dowdell. As captain, manager, and heaviest point winner, he has nursed the infant sport through two trying years, and in the third has seen the object of his work bloom gloriously. Dowdell induced Raymond Uhl, the school boy champion, to act as amateur coach; he forced the recognition of swimming through the Athletic Association; he carried the financial burden; and he established an interscholastic swimming meet as an annual event of the college year.

Soccer

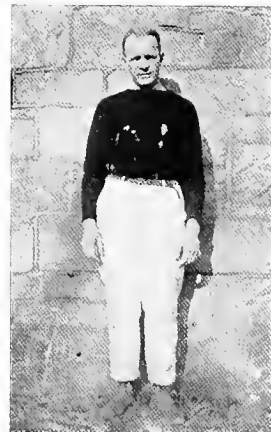

THIS is the first year that soccer has been officially recognized as a minor sport at Swarthmore and under the leadership of Captain Comley the team was developed into a combination that reflects credit upon Swarthmore. Four scheduled games were played during the season resulting in two victories and a like number of defeats. The triumphs over the strong Moorestown and George School teams more than offset the reverse suffered at the hands of Penn State early in the season. Plans are under way to secure membership in the Pennsylvania Inter-collegiate Soccer League and the game promises soon to rival basketball as a winter sport.

The Interclass Basketball Games

THE annual tournament for the basketball championship of the college brought out the same spirited competition that has always featured the interclass sports. This time the seniors were composed almost entirely of 'varsity letter men, nevertheless the juniors gave them a merry battle and in the last and deciding contest compelled the fourth year players to show all they possessed in order to win and save themselves from defeat and a tie for second place in the series.

Phoenix Cup Sports

THE annual interclass track and field meet, and incidentally the Phoenix Cup, was won by the Freshman class with a total of 76 points, while the other classes trailed far behind as follows: Juniors, 28; Seniors, 25½; Sophomores, 23½. Eight out of a possible fourteen first places went to the first year men, the Juniors taking four, and the Sophomores, two.

Carl Stewart, the speedy football end, was the individual star of the meet, amassing a total of sixteen points. Norman Shidle and Alva Bush were tied for second high honors with fifteen points each. Reilly and Quayle alternated first and second places in the mile and half mile runs. Ballard won the 440-yard dash on his nerve, while Bodine, with a quarter mile sprint at the end of his two-mile run, came in an easy winner over Lang and Eby.

The most brilliant feature of the meet was the work of Swarthmore's freshman weight thrower, Henry Hoot, who broke, not only the freshman discus record, but the college record as well when he heaved the projectile a distance of 119 feet 10 inches in an exhibition event.

Fresh-Soph Football Game

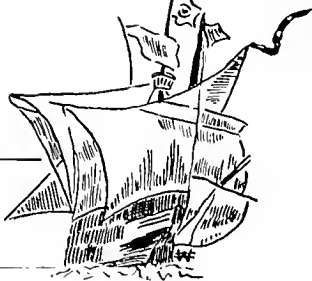

FOR the first time in many years Sophomore strategy and teamwork failed before the vigor and enthusiasm of youth and the Freshman football team romped home winners by a 7 to 0 score. The contest this year was marked with more than ordinary spirit on both sides, and when Cleaver, of the yearlings, scored the touchdown which spelled defeat for the second year men, there was considerable rejoicing in the Freshman camp. Much football talent, hitherto unsuspected, was unearthed, and plays that would have done credit to the varsity were exhibited by these redoubtable warriors. Line-up:

Fresh-Soph Cross Country Run

The annual cross country run between the first and second year men resulted in a grand slam for the representatives of the sophomore class. Gene Taylor, the half-mile phenom, sprinted in an easy winner, the second, third, and fourth places going to G. Tomlinson, L. Taylor, and O. Quayle, respectively. M. Holden was the first freshman to finish.

Fresh-Soph Swimming Meet

The freshman team, led by F. Jenkins, the holder of two Swarthmore College tank records, in a concerted attack nosed out the sophomore swimming experts by the close score of 27 to 25. Tomlinson, of the sophs, won first honors by winning three races, the 50, 100, and 200 yard swims. Jenkins annexed 13 2-3 points for second high individual score, while Pearson, of the sophs, ran third with 7 points.

The Big and Little Quakers in 1916

Swarthmore got the better of Old Penn in the round of sports that marked the athletic year, 1916. Seven contests were played against the Red and Blue in four different sports and of these the Garnet captured four. It is interesting to note that of the three games won by Pennsylvania, two, in lacrosse, were extra time contests, and one, in baseball, took extra innings to decide. Swarthmore won clean victories in basketball and football, and her baseball team won the series.

Varsity Hockey

COMPETITION for positions on the varsity hockey team was exceptionally keen this year and the final eleven selections represent hockey ability of a high standard. Early last fall forty-three ambitious girls reported for initial practice to Miss Shaw, the coach. After over a month of preliminary work during which the candidates for the respective positions strove valiantly to win favor, the varsity was chosen. The junior class received four varsity berths and the seniors a like number; the sophomores had three places, and the freshmen one. Rebecca Conrow, captain, set a fine example to the team for splendid playing and good sportsmanship.

INTERCLASS CHAMPIONS

Interclass Hockey

THE Junior team, by winning three successive games, captured the interclass hockey championship of the college. This is the first time that 1917 has been defeated during its four years at Swarthmore. The series was hotly contested throughout, and much hockey ability, hitherto unsuspected, was unearthed. The hardest fought game of all occurred between the Juniors and the former champion Seniors, and resulted in a 1 to 0 victory for the class of 1918.

Varsity Basketball

THE team this year played three games with outside sextets and of these, two were lost by close scores, while one was placed in the win column. Nan Sullivan completed her four years of varsity basketball as captain of the team and a better leader would be hard to find. The girls were all skillful and experienced players, exhibiting a brand of teamwork that would, by comparison, not prove flattering to the men's varsity. With four of the first team returning next year as a nucleus, and with the best of the inter-class material from which to select, next season's prospects are particularly bright.

Interclass Basketball

AFTER a prolonged series of games, the Senior team finally won the interclass basketball tournament and incidentally the championship of the college. For a time it looked as though the result would be a three-cornered tie between the Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores, but the Sullivan, Maxwell, Atkinson combination was too strong for its rivals. In the final game, the fourth year girls clinched the title by defeating the Juniors 23 to 11. Nan Sullivan and Catharine Wright made practically all of the points for their respective teams. One of the biggest surprises of the season was the development of the Sophomore team, which by a determined spurt, beat the Juniors and climbed to the second rung of the ladder.

ROBERT SLOSS BLAU TO WRITE "USELESSNESS"

THE HALCYON OF 1918

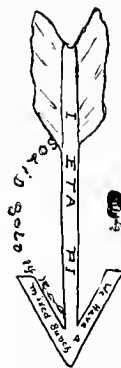

I am a Theta. I live principally in Riverton. My mother is a member of the household committee. My father is a member of the Board of Managers. My sister is coming next year, and the rest of the family will be along later. My aunt was one of the first members of Alpha Beta Chapter. I feel that my social standing is secure and my resources adequate. Altogether my family has contributed generously to the endowment fund. So much for my pedigree.

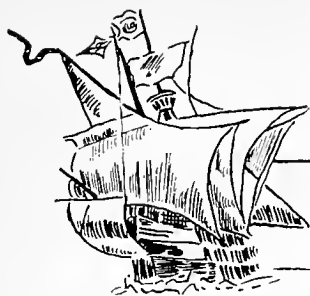

As for my studies, I never let them interfere with my college education. All of my members are unanimously elected to Somerville before the end of their Senior year, and one of our members made Phi Beta Kappa.

I should like to announce to sub-freshmen that if they desire to join my chapter, they can do no better than to look up their family tree and discover some relationship to my distinguished ancestry. If I don't ask you right away, don't be discouraged, but just remember that all things come to her who waits. One of our members is Dean, you know, and we are sure we just about manage the college.

The following letter was written by a member of the Pennsylvania Alpha Chapter of the Pi Beta Phi Fraternity to a western sister:

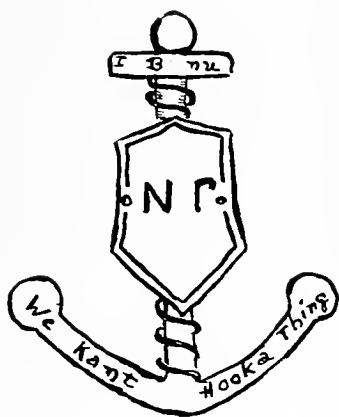

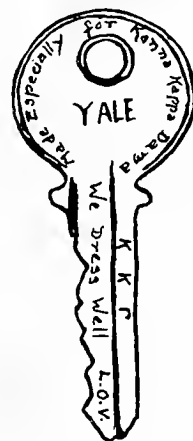

"Dear Believer in the Cause: I know you will take what I have to say to you in the Christian spirit in which it is sent. We are all working for the same thing—a full dance program and the management of the Y. W. C. A. Dear sister, let us get together and do the thing up brown. Most of the heathen here are willing to hear the gospel, and my prayer to you is that as sorry as I am to see you turn in the wrong paths, I must confess myself that I have often sat on the couch, have often spent the week ends away in the distant resorts, have dusted the alcoves, have taken Modern Philanthropy, and indeed even used strategy and the telephones in my efforts to bring to my sisters the happy romances that I have experienced. These are the joys of education. O you westerners, profit by the experience of those who are in the game. If you find it hard to reconcile our two chief aims, look again into the gospels. They explain everything."

THE HALCYON of 1918

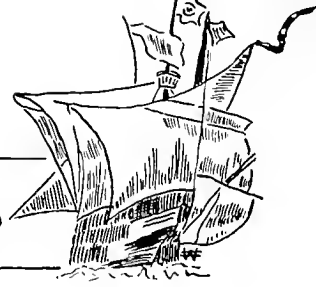

Never since I've been a Kappa has there been so much excitement in camp. You know we have always been very careful of what we do. We always wanted to be as interested in college sports, dances, Student Government and other activities as is deemed proper. We did not want to do too much; yet we felt we must do something. Of course, we always considered the opinions of Eddie White and Billy Provost very reliable, but somehow this year they picked out more than we can handle. The rest of us are working, worrying, and arguing about the best method of keeping up with the pace they set. Naturally, the record of our nineteen sixteen class, even though there is still one single, should be enough to attract freshmen. We feel that although we have been matrimonially successful, we need now to turn our efforts toward the subjects of interest to every one else.

I am a Delta Gamma. I live in the village; am not a Senior,—very ambitious. I would rather see one of my fraternity sisters President of Student Government than have the whole chapter invited to a Phi Psi dinner dance. I make it a point to appear democratic, with the result that my real superiority over non-fraternity girls is sometimes lost sight of. Automobiles, relief from college meals by visits to my home in the village, public speaking exhibitions, and references to fraternity sisters who hold offices and posts of honor, constitute my main bid for freshmen. I am acutely conscious of my extreme youth, and have not yet entirely forgotten my painful experience in attempting to anchor here. My stock in trade is offices and honors; my motto, "It pays to advertise."

THE HALCYON OF 1918

The Fraternity Manual Abridged

or

The Bitter Truth

"Oh, Gladys Those Phi Psi's are such nice boys—so polite and gentlemanly. Oh, I could just fall in love with a dozen of them. And dance! Why, Gladys, dear, you have no idea. They know all the latest things. It's just too cute the way they smile and bow. And they do say such nice things. I just love it don't you? The other fraternity boys just never could learn."

The present war will probably relieve the Kappa Sigma Athletic Club of the necessity of turning out a football team this year.

Inasmuch as Delta Upsilon is non-secret, why not take time out some Wednesday night and pass upon it? An incentive to this duty would be that we might learn the secret of the one "C" Phil Hunt made at mid-years.

Phi Sigma Kappa is a state of mind. You simply put a pin on and Brother Brooke on the Philadelphia papers will do the rest for you. He can make anything out of you, from a mob-quieter to a college president.

T A O thought it would change its name to the "Phoenix Club" this year, but refrained from doing so because it was afraid of complications in getting a Phi Delta Theta charter.

Phi Psi was founded during a typhoid epidemic at Jefferson College. It is a splendid example of what may result from delirium. The Swarthmore chapter is in danger of losing its charter because Elliott chews tobacco and refuses to wear pumps to breakfast.

"Myrtle, child, don't cry any more. I'm sure that boy didn't mean to spill hot soup in your hair. And he probably never meant to jab your eye with that horrid fork. But, Myrtle, if you really wish to leave the Kappa Sigma table I will find room for you somewhere else."

The D U's are going to do everything Commencement Week except hand out the diplomas. Now that Ed Tomlinson is an alumnus of a year, he might be persuaded to come back and do this little job for Prexy.

The P S K's have a number of prominent alumni. Fats Wilson is another big man. Judging from the Freshmen they pulled last fall, all this strength is unnecessary.

THE HALCYON of 1918

T A O always speaks with reverence of Brother Shrode, who helps the Dean run the College. Among other prominent alumni are Walt Rittman, who discovered kerosene, and Johnny Stevens who has a job laughing at English army bullets.

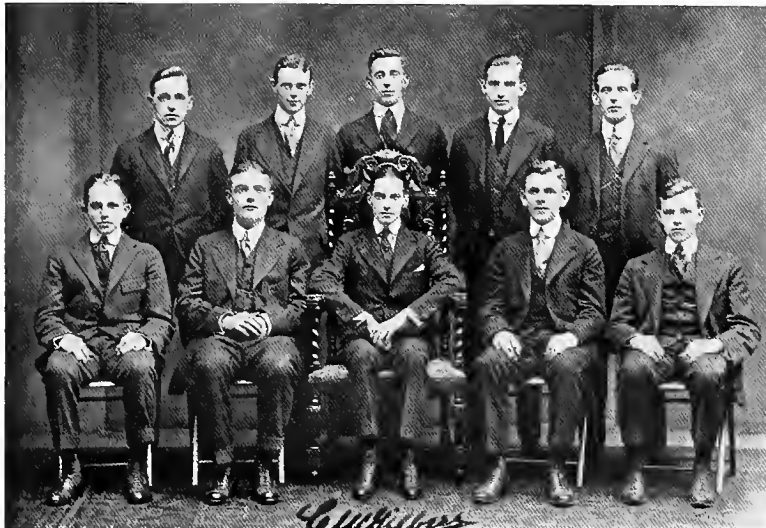

Under no circumstances should the crowd over the hardware store be permitted at large. Their activity must be confined to baseball diamonds, teas, and the Bellevue ballrooms.

After the withering disappointment over the inability of Harold Smith to make good as a pianist, the Kappa Sig's hesitated a long time before chancing a bid for John Johnson. That is why they favor a postponed pledge day so strongly.

Ally Cornog's artistic taste will out. During the first part of Spring vacation the D U's held a province convention at Swarthmore and Ally, despite the opposition of the entire chapter insisted on having flowers on the college dining room tables.

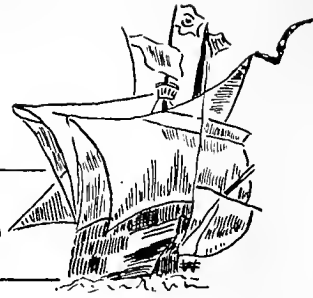

Now we know the secret of the P S K's scholastic strength: it is music. Bert Brown supplied it, and then Gilchrist, but since Gilly left college they have been obliged to buy a victrola. The Kappa Sig's might do well to buy a steam piano.

T A O is growing by leaps and bounds, but every time Hollingshead runs for the 6:50, it scares them out of a year's expansion.

This is a picture of the Bob Willets Club which Bob founded soon after his initiation into Phi Psi. Bob is the millionaire seated in the big chair. The club speaks for itself.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

A Composite Collection Speech

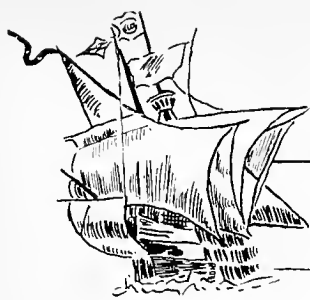

Ladies and Gentlemen, it is my opinion—of course, you don't care anything about my opinion—but it is my opinion that a mild antiseptic used morning and night on the nose and throat will prove more efficacious in preserving the traditions and sentiment which surround the ivys clinging to old Par-rish than all the rag-time poetry of the Dark Ages.

For, as the Alligator is a spot dear to the hearts of college students, a bureau of occupations for trained women would be better to safeguard the future peace of nations than the armed neutrality of the Hague Conference.

A moral victory is more to be desired than an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, and I have here a little poem written by a relation of my wife's down to old Aunt Mary's before the war. It is necessary, in order to get at the bottom of things that all local trains stop at Media. For that purpose Jerry Taylor wrote our Alma Mater—to instill the purest patriotic principles—not of your candidate or of my candidate, but of our president into your minds.

The annual Sophomore Show is an institution which seeks a conservation of our rapidly decreasing coal supply, and the preservation of the femininity of the Christian religion.

I thank God every morning that I am not Dean of Women, which sentiment has a psychological effect upon swallow, swallow, little swallow.

THE HALCYON of 1918

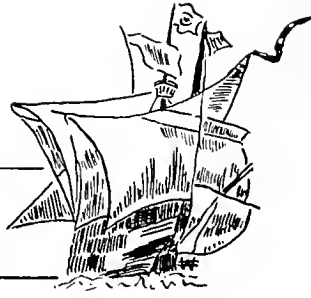

Let me tell you, ladies and gentlemen, that if you young people, as representatives of the vast thought and education, will support the suffrage cause, and cherish all door-knobs as repositories of stored-up energy, it will be easier to get the Phoenix editor to print our speeches.

I see that my time is growing short. Let me add just one more word. I beg of you, as guardians of our immortal water tower and patrons of the Pie Shop, to go to the polls with a Bible in your hands and a prayer on your lips. With this last thought I leave you, first begging your support for the endowment fund and the Russian democracy.

The Ousel

The Ousel is a crazy bird,
It haunts these halls of fame;
And if the secret should be known—
Stuge Corson is its name.

It fiercely chews its mustache blue
With orange tawny bill;
It throws green door knobs at the skies,
And turns the coffee mill.

The soup it chews is something fierce
It heeds not friend or foe—
But quickly shoots between its teeth
Three thousand miles or so.

It grimly rolls its piercing eyes
Upon the burning sands;
To it torpedoes bark and beg
And plead with outstretched hands.

It sometimes saves a life or three
By way of mild diversion;
And then it takes the starfish out
Upon a swift excursion.

The Ousel is a crazy bird,
It stalks these halls of fame;
And in case you ever see it—
Stuge Corson is its name.

Table-Book Witlessness or Showing Up the College Sense of Humor

(Keep This Title Always in Mind.)

Definition of "breakfast": Eggs, whether fried, poached, boiled, scrambled, or merely thrown on the table.

No submarine warfare shall be waged.

I thought, and I thought
And I thought in vain
And then I thought
I'd write my name.

Richard G. Hodge.

Nothing shall be taken from the table—when ——— is watching.

Katie calls me "Eddy,"
Hilda calls me "Toot,"
Norman calls me "Edwin,"
But I'm "Mr. Gowdy" when I wear my Sunday suit.

Intruders are always welcome—Signed, Pop Bodine.

The good die young, but the people at this table will live forever. (Certainly, Miss Lukens, we'll never tell.)

List of those who never bring candy to the table—Walter B. Lang.

The boy stood on the burning deck
His head was in a whirl
His eyes and mouth were full of hair
His arms were full of girl.

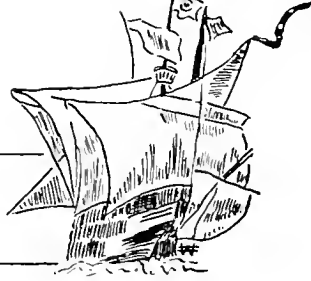

(Ed. Note—Refer back to title of these selections.)

Ralph shoulders the table responsibility, and Minna tries to laugh.

Robey said, "Oh, Doc Trotter is a DEAR. I love him. He chews tobacco ALL the time. I'm just crazy about him!"

The cow has crossed the table,
The milk has disappeared;
And Pratty stands a-dreaming:
The hash is brown and seared.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

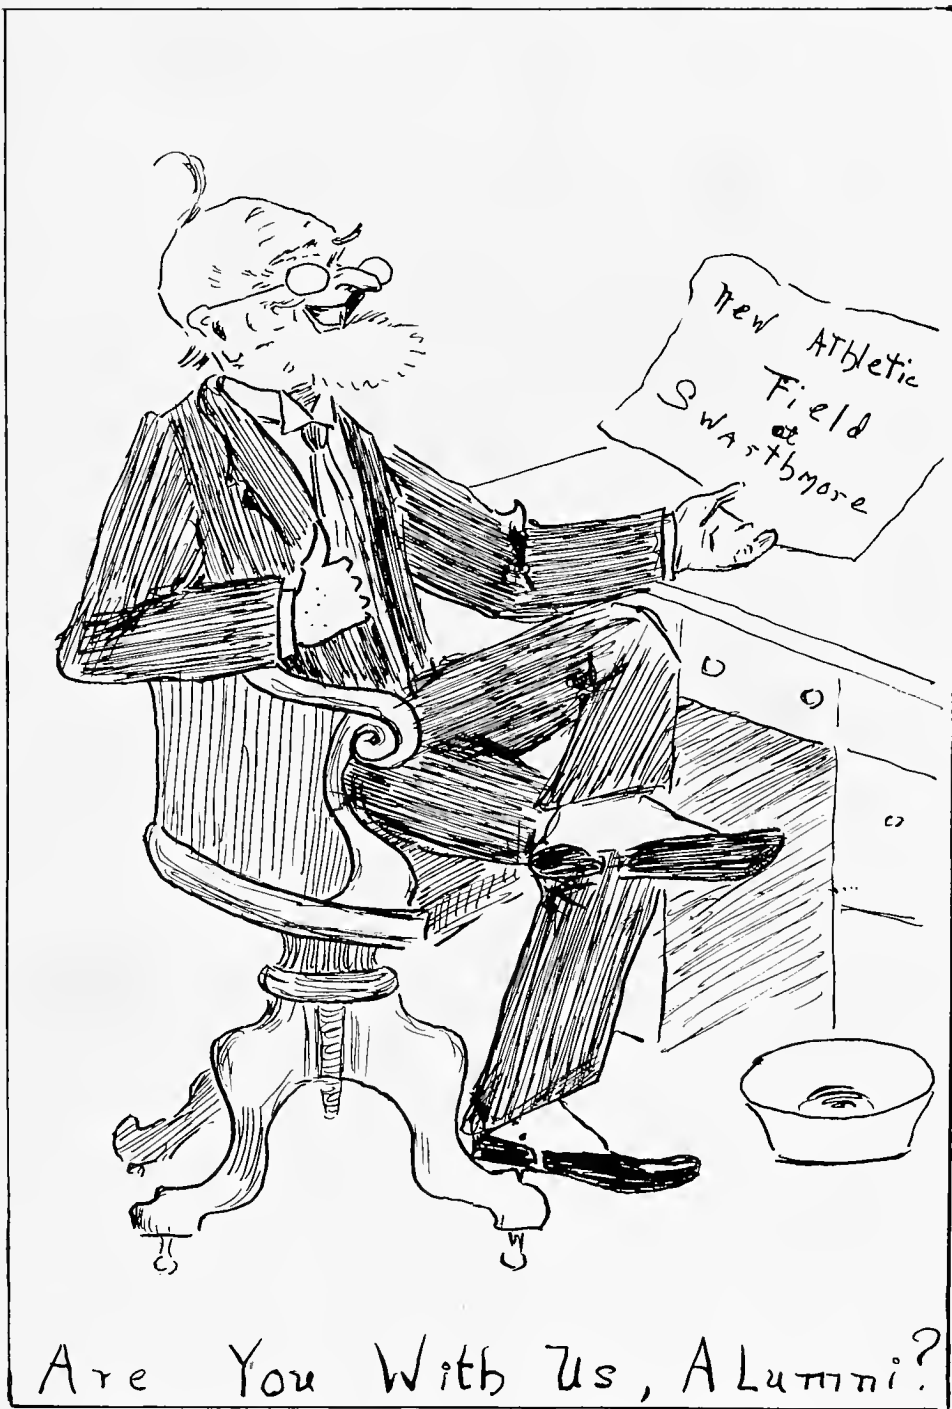

THIS is the first picture of Book and Key which has ever been procured for publication in a HALCYON. It was only after a long period that we finally persuaded the gentlemen to pose. Once we had them facing the camera we took two pictures in order that the public might be sure to see them.

Unfortunately, the light was bad and the camera registered the complexions of the Seven Powerful Ones a little darker than we would have liked.

The tall gentleman in the center, holding the symbolic Key to All Things is John Roach Sproul. In the upper picture, reading from left to right the Immortals are, J. Clarence Lukens, Lester B. Shoemaker (who returned to college expressly for the picture), Walter B. Lang (behind Mr. Sproul), J. Tenney Mason, George Donald Spackman, and William W. Tomlinson.

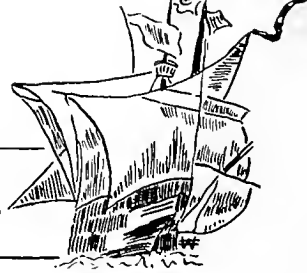

Mr. Lukens and Mr. Tomlinson are furnished with boxing gloves in order that they may defend their estate from any invaders.

Dear Prexy: We will see you later in regard to the emolument for this endowment publicity

THE HALCYON OF 1918

As a distinctive feature, we are running views of well-known Swarthmoreans having their picture taken

I.

ALECK, or William A. Alexander, as he is sometimes called. He is smiling because he is thinking of the wonderful catch of sunfish he made the day before. He is now on his way from the Benjamin West house to his office in Parrish where he will either pull some poor student out of the clutches of the Absence Committee, get six sets of parents to send their children to Swarthmore, or raise $15,000 for Prexy's endowment fund.

II.

MISS SARAH DODDRELL COALE was caught just as she stopped to say "Hello" to Doc Mercer's future All-American. Miss Coale is the one who is introducing window flowers into the quadrangle windows. She now has the windows of the infirmary full of orange trees, and has influenced Pat McGovern to start a window-box of geraniums. Miss Coale is eligible for the Nobel Peace Prize.

III.

CAROLINE AUGUSTA LUKENS, girls' fire marshal, custodian of the dignity of the piano, alumni directory, matron of Parrish Hall Center, first assistant to Supt. Roberts, locker of the Book Room, and boss of Dave Miller. She is also warden of the "Pet," and guardian of the mirror. In spite of all these responsibilities, she keeps irregular hours—at the Book Room.

THE HALCYON of 1918

THE EDITOR OF THE HALCYON.

Dear Sir: I am a student of Swarthmore College, and I will make it worth your while if you will say something VERY, VERY CRUEL about Prof. Marriott. I certainly think he deserves it.

Most sincerely yours,

Certainly. We will undertake anything if we are sufficiently provoked.

Ogden—"Keep them. They may develop into pictures."

THIS SPACE CONTAINED THE BEST PICTURE THE HALCYON PHOTOGRAPHERS HAD. WE DID NOT PRINT IT BECAUSE WE DID NOT WISH TO CREATE A STIR IN FACULTY CIRCLES. IT IS STILL IN THE HALCYON OFFICE IF ANY STUDENT CARES TO RISK HIS DIPLOMA BY LOOKING AT IT.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

We Are Now Going to Run Pictures of Some Things and People at College Which Require Especial Note

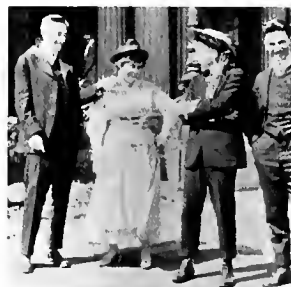

I

This is a picture of Boyd Barnard taken while he was running for governor of Kansas. The idea worked just like taking an umbrella to school—if you do, it never rains. Boyd was not elected governor, so we spent fifty dollars trying to get a good picture of the governor of Kansas.

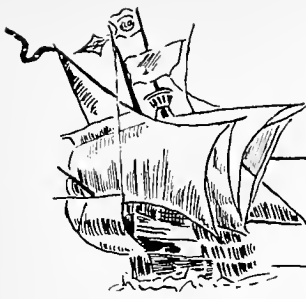

II

RUTH KISTLER, playing the title role in "A Fair Exchange," or "The Quaker Maid," or something. On the extreme left is Jerry Stickney, who is holding up his hand in order to catch the hat should it fall. Thank you, Ruth. Thank you, Jerry.

III

Barring thumb prints and other blemishes, this is a picture of ALLEN ISAAC MYERS. He is gazing awestruck at Doc Creighton who has just come down to the Chemistry Lab without his wrist watch. As Doc is about to enter the picture in such a dishevelled attire, we will take the camera away.

THE HALCYON of 1918

IV

ELSIE SINZHEIMER, helping Miss Shaw have her picture taken. Elsie is giving the photographer the Chautauqua salute. We will not take any more of her time, as she is one of the busiest girls in college.

V

How many titles can you think of for this picture in six seconds? The normal person should be able to think of ten, at least. The main characters in the picture are RUSSELL GOURLEY and FENNY BAKER. We mention this as a clue.

VI

As we come to the end of our page and look back upon our work, we are inclined to pronounce it good. One thing it lacks, however. Ah, it is a good picture of Doc Price, Mick Ainsworth, Red Ewell and Young Buckman. Ah, here they are right now. Gentlemen, if you will just hold that pose a moment, you will be making page 269 perfect. Thank you, gentlemen.

Who's Who With the Faculty

A LIST OF THE FAVORITE AUTHORS OF YOUR FACULTY
FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS

Just mention them in Recitation and you will have passed the Course

MISS GORHAM: John Dryden—Chaucer—Mrs. Wharton.

MISTER PACE: "American Literature With Readings," by Roy Bennett Pace.

DOC BROOKS: "Corruption in American Politics," by Robert C. Brooks.

This is supposed to be "Ducky's Army." It isn't, though. It is only a picture of it. The Army is made up of eight prominent students who formed the organization with the idea of doing more effective work in Ducky's classes. This picture was taken in the quadrangle just as they were about to start an afternoon's work. Note the studious expression on their faces. As it stands above, the Army is—front row, left to right: Ewall, Buckman, Yardley; back row, Ogden, Baker, Bush, Ballard, Gourley. Look 'em over, Ducky.

What Them College Boys Won't Think Of

THE HALCYON of 1918

BUSINESS MANAGER THE HALCYON:

Dear Sir: I have noticed that in your Senior section you have a picture of me AT WORK. Of course, I realize that my friends may misjudge the whole thing and think that the picture was posed especially for the occasion. But I have sufficient faith in a number of them to send them copies of the HALCYON in order to show them what a change has come into my life.

I am, therefore, ordering sixty HALCYONS. Will you see that they are delivered to me as soon as possible?

Very truly yours,

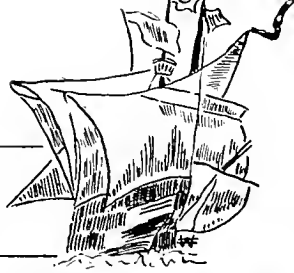

WILLIAM R. PROVOST

On the cover of this HALCYON you have seen a picture of the HALCYON bird. Do not believe it. At your left is the true resemblance to the bird. At first glance it seems to be a picture of the editor playing Sunday baseball on the front campus. In reality, it is a composite picture of a member of the HALCYON staff searching for his—her lost spirit. See him—her look in vain. It has gone forever.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

What Can

a

Poor
Man
Do?

APRIL

4. College work resumed after Spring Vacation.

5. Dr. Hull gives a short memorial talk for Roy Ogden.

6. Cornell baseball game; the umpire amuses the co-eds.

7. Mrs. Newport is discovered in the Dark Ages.

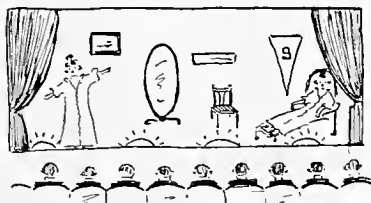

8. Somerville Day. Two frightened freshmen boys are discovered in Parrish.

10. Cornell Lacrosse game.

11. Mrs. Newport finally emerges from the Dark Ages.

12. Duckie appears with a Lacrosse stick.

13. Darn dull day.

14. Women's Glee Club. The girls appear in kimonos. Horrors! What can the Dean be thinking of?

15. Nineteen seventeen gives its last Junior dance.

17. See Psalm 151:23.

18. Carl Shrode earns twelve dollars in half as many minutes.

19. Ursinus baseball game. We win, per usual.

20. Dr. Miller tells a visiting speaker that "the acoustics of Collection are bad."

21. Mid-semester grades are given out.

22. The day after.

24. Several people have their lessons done.

25. Miss Hogue creates a sensation by reading rag-time poetry in Collection.

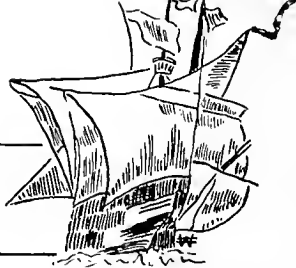

26. Collection becomes soporific again.

27. Miss Meeteer in Greek class, "Has thee a cold, does thee feel feverish, Jack?"

28. Dr. Hayes recommends the saving of door-knobs and chewing gum for the conservation of energy.

29. Ice cream is scarcer at the Senior dance than in the dining room on Wednesday nights.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

MAY

1. May morning in the evening. We are presented with a multiplicity of kings, who rise to heights heretofore unknown.

2. Would-be Bookies begin to look scared.

3. "Student Exec" for mine.

Fictitious! Eb?

4. Swat night at Tapmore.

5. Resolved that girls should have won from Penn State anyhow.

6. Morning—Rutgers track meet. Afternoon,—Interscholastic meet and tennis match. Evening,—Oratorical Contest. The rest of the people studied.

8. The seniors fail to elect a president.

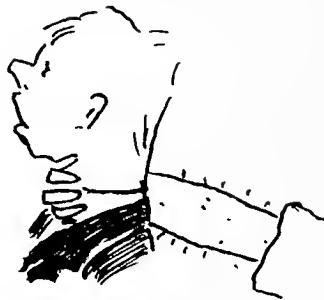

This instead of This

9. "Quiet colors and adequate shirt-waists are recommended for feminine apparel at Swarthmore."

10. Payment for 1917 Halcyons will be received in front parlor after lunch."

11. The "Hookies" get initiated.

12. "Payment for 1918 Halcyons will be received in the front parlor after lunch."

13. "Doc" Martin's football party. Who had a good time? Everyone who went.

15. Jack Sproul takes Miss Lukens night walking to the library.

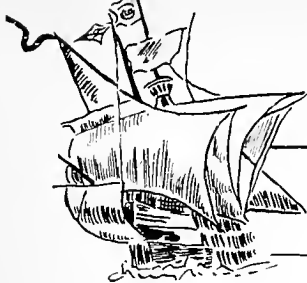

Who let that loose?
now I ask you?

16. Trumbauer uses too much Herpicide.

17. Mr. Trumbauer appears in a convict cap.

18. College calendar unsullied.
19. Senior-Soph picnic.
Eats—Pickles and lettuce.
Entertainment — Sprinting
and Harmony.
20. The 1917 Halcyon is added to the previous thirty-one on the Library shelves.
22. "Honors never come singly"—William Tomlinson is chosen Chairman of men's exec.
23. People are too busy studying to make things happen.
24. Exams are coming.

25. Only one more week to finish
those papers.

WORK!

JUNE

8. Waiters lend color to Senior luncheon. Dance in the evening.
9. Johnnie Orchard proves to 1916 that it is the best class that ever went from Swarthmore. An "all star" cast presents "The Merry Wives of Windsor" better than Shakespeare could have done
it all by himself.

10. Prexy tells us what to do with some of our surplus money. Those who can find men dance in the evening.

11. Ernest P. Bicknell and Hugh Den-worth talk.

12. The illustrious class of 1916, our sister class, steps out into the cold, cold world. Bryan spends a quiet vacation.

OCTOBER

6. Resurrection Day. The fish that never died returns to haunt us.
7. Swarthmore humbles Lafayette 10-6 in first football game. Whole college meets Maze at the 9:30 train.
8. Y. W. C. A. invaded by wandering minstrels from South America who demonstrate how it is done in Argentine.

THE HALCYON of 1918

9. Hughes mass meeting leaves Esther Holmes a Republican, but converts Dr. Brooks and Shrode to Democracy.

10. Husky Snyder decides to take Voelker to the Junior Dance.

11. First blade of grass appears on Swarthmore Field. We anxiously await a poem from J. R. H. on the event.

12. Allie Cornog, in his initial appearance, holds forth at length on the need for both girls and fellows at the Penn game. Eddie White says, "Let 'em alone."

13. Gifford Pinchot addresses a Hugh-je audience, but fails to distract the girls from their knitting.

14. Little Quakers play rough with Penn. Score, 6-0. Roper sees visions of another gold football.

15. The morning after. The papers say that (Dumb) Bell of Penn. really won the game for us.

16. Stonemasons break all previous records and lay three stones in the quadrangle.

17. J. R. H. awakes from a dream and proves dynamitier than the sword.

18. Eddie White leads four freshmen in a rousing cheer on the front campus.

19. Five freshmen attend cheer practice.

20. Junior engineers and faculty make a night of it, and join Σ T. Lynn Bailey suddenly develops a manly chest.

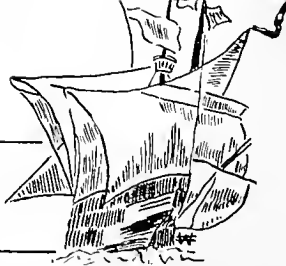

21. Victory number three. Swarthmore 6, F. & M. O. Juniors dance.

22. Boys give enthusiastic demonstration of admiration for Miss Lukens in the front hall after supper—a feather shower.

23. Kap Price and Floss Shoemaker return to their childhood and bury themselves in a pile of leaves. They aren't the only ones who enjoyed themselves.

24. "Chief" Myers denounces Wilson for five minutes and wins the Potter Debate Prize.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

NOVEMBER

1. First meeting of the faculty dancing class. My, what funny things you see when you haven't got a gun!

25. Wilson gets overwhelming majority of faculty votes. Straws show which way the wind blows.

26. The cast of the Founders' Day play try their level best to be happy.

27. Democratic mass meeting addressed by Mayor Donnelly, Wm. Ellis and Wm. Berry. Many words and much mud.

28. Founders' Day. The Sophs tell us how much they hate themselves. Swarthmore decides that 13 isn't such an unlucky number after all. Much "Happiness" in Parrish.

30. Football practice suspended in honor of the Ursinus victory. Fred limps over to Parrish for his mail after dinner; never knew Fred to be so interested in his correspondence before.

31. Shades of our Quaker founders! A berry market is established in collection hall, and a company of ghosts and goblins trip the light fantastic in the men's gym.

2. Dr. Holmes adjures the students to go to the polls with a Bible in their hands and a prayer on their lips.

3. Girls! straw vote elects Wilson by a majority of two.

4. We win another football game. S. 14, Hopkins 6.

6. First Hallowe'en Dance in the memory of college is enlivened by presence of corpse.

7. McGovern goes to Camden to vote, his Bible is not glaringly evident.

8. Lynn Bailey, Mealy, and Weston are elected to the board of managers.

9. Hughes is president for 48 hours.

THE WALCYON of 1918

10. Dr. David Miller, speaking in mass meeting, says that you can erase the score from the mirror but not from the record.

11. Gentleman under the influence gets an overwhelming desire to kiss Allie Cornog. It is rumored that Columbia will demand a recount. 18-0.

13. Bob Ogden makes a hit in class meeting, appearing in a gray flannel shirt sans buttons, and a brilliant red tie under his left ear.

14. Eddie White attends Collection.

15. Blau and Nay sign peace treaty; much emotion displayed—also commotion.

16. Dr. Alleman lectures on the evils of drinking water.

17. Mrs. Newport tries to can Eddie White's Hamburg Show, but discovers that Prexy doesn't like preserved things.

18. The Hamburg Show proceeds $65. Football slate is still clean, but Dickinson nearly cracked it, 168 hours till Haverford.

20. Mrs. Newport distills college spirit in Collection, and almost convinces us that we never should have had that show.

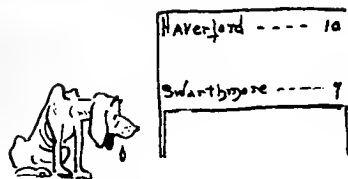

21. The jinx is here. Mike with a wrenched knee and Pat with a busted arm, join Clarke and Donnelly on the hospital list. It's a hard year on the Irish.

22. 1918 snatches the hockey championship from the seniors.

23. Rain.

24. Doc. Speakman tells us that we can't all have what we all want all of the time.

25. Doc. Speakman was right,—nevertheless we achieved a great moral victory.

27. Duckie's army meets in Parrish and marches to camp on the third floor, singing their battle song.

28. The lost sheep—Pat and Smitty and the Billies Clark and Provost return to the fold.

29. The new absence committee is voted the most popular in history by a large minority of the voters.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

DECEMBER

4. The Profs are all greeted with brilliant recitations, everybody is speaking about how glad they are to be back.

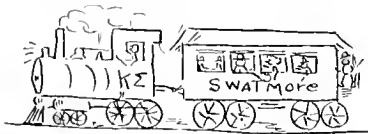

5. Dr. Pearson rudely disillusiones the freshmen as to the existence of Santa Claus.

6. Tenny Mason has a birthday cake with seventeen candles. Behold the infant prodigy!

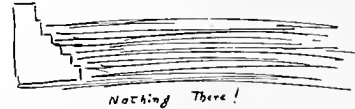

7. Kaptin Olin came back after spending a very pleasant vacation at —.

8. Walter Timmis shows the Dec. majors how it should be done.

9. The Kappa Sigs travel from Camden to Kalamazoo, but lose a couple at Elkton.

11. J. R. H. says he didn't say what Marc Dowdell said he said.

12. The man in the moon shakes his bed on the new athletic field.

13. Hayes gives a "sympathetic" collection speech. We need it.

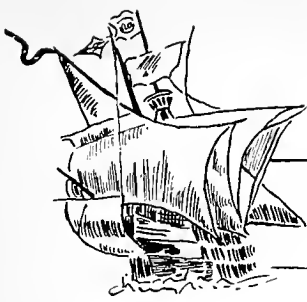

14. Dr. Brooks loses the famous stick pin in a mad rush for the 3.08.

15. Dr. Robinson conducts his class without the aid of Snyder. Annual Y. W. C. A. hold-up in the Girls' gym. Louise Meeteer shines as an Oriental snake charmer.

SECTION "B" ATHLETIC CLUB

THE HALCYON of 1918

10. Jerry Coy's new dress causes disturbance in the Student Government meeting which elects Clem president.

11. The Crim. class supplies the prisoners of Media jail with cigarettes and matches.

12. "The Kleptomaniac" is brought to Collection by Junior Girls. Miss Lukens bursts a lung. Scrubs debate P. I. D.

13. Sproul spoils Smith's catsup bath, and decorates neighbors.

15. Partners drawn for Junior Dance. Mealy thinks he has another date. Corson makes an oration.

16. Mrs. Newport gives bird's-eye view of students from platform.

17. Basketball team hit by submarine at Annapolis. Nothing stolen in Whar-ton.

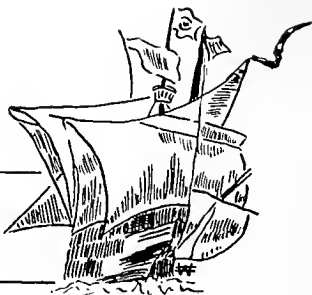

18. Bob Ogden expresses a desire to spend a couple of weeks with some of the girls in order to get ideas for Hal-cyon write-ups.

19. Forlorn fish furnish food.

20. Sophs show latent talent in annual production. Carris and Blake prove bigger nuts than usual. But then, that is their "specialty." Six-footers and Boughton win from Army. Score, 25-11.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

22. Reds Ewell eulogizes Duckie's Army.

23. Movies of Canada.

24. Three members of faculty attend Collection.

25. Halcyon staff assembles in the front parlor.

26. Deaf and Dumb yell rendered with much feeling.

27. We give Penn a drubbing, but McNichol wins, 16-14.

28. The Library opens. We take our poetic inspiration thereto and write a few sonnets on Penn's immoral victory.

29 to Sat. 3rd. Exams. Further comment cut by censors.

7. Bob Ogden wears a hard collar in broad daylight. Rumors of war. (Ogden says it was because he was going to see Henry VIII).

8. Dean Meeteer appears in Collection, and gives decision for non-attendance to Doc Alleman.

9. Pittsburg's football team beaten in basketball by Garnet whirlwind before Prep. school guests.

10. Lehigh wins by one point in extra period. Hopkins succumbs to swimming team under heavy score. Tomlinson wins record event.

12. Juniors depart from custom for the 23rd time and decide to give a patriotic dance.

13. Dr. Brooks tells Municipal Government Class that the last time he went to Cincinnati he fell dead when he found the saloons were not open on Sunday.

14. Girls decide to train for Red Cross nurses.

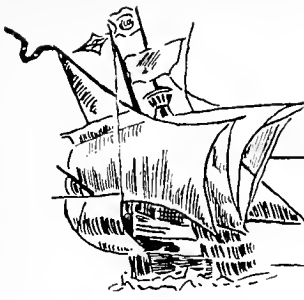

FEBRUARY

3. Inspired by the beautiful co-eds, the Scrubs lick West Chester Normal. Molloy impersonates the Dean over the phone, and breaks up a Wharton card party.

5. Yardley calls on the Dean as a committee from the card players and discovers the joke. Molloy receives some correspondence from the Dean anent the advisability of impersonating people with understanding.

6. No Phoenix on account of exams. Owen Moon rests uneasily for a whole week more. The Sophs intrude upon the Freshman section with much decorative talent. Rumors of vacation and bills.

THE HALCYON of 1918

15. "Ladies, gentlemen, and those engaged in doing punch work" attend Alice Fricke's recital of the "Blue Bird" in Collection Hall.

16. The would-be football managers and the would-be basketball managers make entertaining exhibitions of themselves.

17. Dr. Goddard goes to Media to the movies. Senior dance. College dance in the men's gymnasium—ten couples dance to the "music" of a Victrola.

19. Dr. Pearson brings his "Swallow, swallow, little swallow" to Collection. This is no aviary. Helen Atkins gives "The Prince Chap."

20. Somerville debate. The affirmative manages to convince two of the judges that a point system should be adopted at Swarthmore.

21. Swarthmore-Haverford Glee Club Concert—another moral victory for Swarthmore.

22. College work officially suspended for the day.

23. Sophomore Halcyon Board elected. Heaven help them.

24. Juniors hold best class dance in the history of the college.

26. Elections for "Brush and Curl" are announced.

27. Miss Gorham says the Soph Show will enable the Sophs to appreciate the real thing when they see it.

28. Maze requests that at least one telephone booth be erected in Wharton.

MARCH

1. Phi Beta Kappa elections announced in Collection. We were not surprised at those who were elected, but at those who were not.

2. Men lose to State in basketball. Girls win from Temple. Debate decision given to Swarthmore—by the judges.

3. Landsdowne rough-necks beat up girls' varsity basketball team.

5. Ewell elected assistant basketball manager.

6. Dr. Hull wears a soft collar to class.

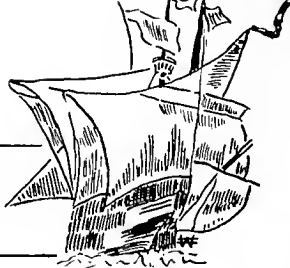

7. Women's student government holds an all-night session because they feel they are over-burdened with college activities.

MORNING AFTER THE NIGHT BEFORE

8. Kwink elects Bush, Buckman and Ewell. Pearson smiles as he is elected 1919 Halcyon Editor. Cheer up, Drew.

THE HALCYON OF 1918

9. Men's Glee Club Concert. Wilson still has his "to-motter."

10. The girls show the boys how to give a noisy hour party. Esther Hayes has a "little pome"—the rest of us have hysterics.

12. Rothschild Stickney alleges that everyone can easily give $60 toward the Jubilee Fund, in class meeting.

13. Ruth Kistler gives her Junior recital "Seventeen" in Collection. "Ye gods!"

14. "Quack, quack"—it's only Duckie preaching a sermonette.

15. Ella Bucher gives her Junior recital, "The Dawn of To-morrow."

16. Mysterious green pigs appear in the mail.

17. Pig chasers enjoy a tramp through the mud.

19. Halcyon staff plans to spend vacation at college. Dowdell goes to Collection.

20. Thatch and a Chautauqua song bird entertain us for three hours.

21. We decide to send Sallie and Miss Mendenhall to the Jubilee Fund banquet.

22. Dr. Brooks fails to call on Helen Darlington in class.

23. Halcyon staff starts to work.

WE DEDICATE this book to our advertisers, who alone made its publication possible. Each firm has been investigated and personally solicited. As a result, the Committee is justified in recommending them for the patronage of the student body of Swarth-

Preparatory School

Your boy! Does he lack enthusiasm? The Swarthmore atmosphere fairly teems with it! Usefulness! The will to get on! Energy! Each boy on his mettle—that is the Swarthmore spirit! No time for the slacker!"

Our boys are advanced according to their progress. We eliminate retarding influence. Look up our record of college preparation or write for booklets: "The Vision of Swarthmore" and "A Mother's Letter and What Came of It?"

Perfect environment, modern buildings thoroughly equipped, exceptional campus and playgrounds, indoor and outdoor athletics, faculty supervision.

A Happy Home for Girls

Each day at Mary Lyon reveals a new wealth of pleasure and instruction for our girls. Afternoon rides, athletic games, swimming, canoeing and dancing. Interesting courses of study cover the fine arts, college preparation, home economics, general and finishing courses.

The beautiful new Mary Lyon Buildings are located out in the spicy country air, where health and happiness are an inspiration to work. Only a few minutes ride from historic old Philadelphia, with its wonder store of interesting places and its art and music advantages.

Our idea at Mary Lyon is a broad one. We believe that these are the happiest and most beneficial days of a girl's life, and therefore try to make every hour pleasant and instructive. We should like very much for you to visit us and see the work we are doing. If a visit is not possible, write for our catalog. You cannot help but be delighted with the attractive surroundings and the fine, happy family of girls in the Mary Lyon Home.

Seven Gables, our school for little girls, is in a separate building, yet one in the big Mary Lyon Home.
